Yule Packages Will Sport Attractive Look This Year

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Christmas ties and gift wraps concealing packages under the trees will sport a professional touch by some Lincolnites who this year are taking the first City Recreation Department's free workshop on wrapping packages.

Mrs. William K. Hasenyager, who recently took a gift wrapping course at the Adult High School, teaches the small class of Lincoln women. Although attendance has been light, from 15 to 20 can be accommodated in the three-week workshop.

Concentrating on making packages more attractive, Mrs. Hasenyager, a busy minister's wife, has demonstrated tailored bows which can be mailed and still look pretty, along with several other kinds of bows.

A complicated looking "boat bow" turned out to be simple loops and some stapling. And students were told that making a bow resembling a dainty rosebud also "is very easy to do."

"Carnation" bows, "pompons," and a hand made version imitating the "machine made bows sold in store in addition to hints on selecting kinds of paper and ribbon to wrap neat packages, have been on the workshops agenda.

The gift wrapping class, established as a result of interest expressed to the recreation department, meets for 1½ hours each Wednesday afternoon.

VOTE STUNS DE GAULLE

Runoff Certain; Leftist Second

. . . 85 PER CENT TURN OUT

Paris (AP)—French voters handed President Charles de Gaulle a humiliating rebuff in Sunday's persidential election. An official tally showed the 75-year-old general won a bare 43.9% of the vote and must fight a runoff election to stay at the nation's helm.

Although he led the field of six candidates, the showing was a stunning blow to the austere, aloof de Gaulle who had asked his countrymen for "massive" support.

A run-off election, with only the two top candidates left on the ballot, will be held Dec. 19. Francois Mitterrand, supported by Communists, Socialists and some Radical Socialists, got 32% and placed second.

FRANCOIS MITTERRAND

Jean Leacanuet, 45, a middle of the roader who styled himself the "French Kennedy," cut sharply into De Gaulle's support, although he ran behind Mitterrand.

In Washington, some officials interpreted the returns as meaning that a great number of Frenchmen disagree with De Gaulle's foreign and military policies.

There was fear among some of De Gaulle's supporters that he would spurn a second contest. As usual, De Gaulle maintained an aloof silence at his country home where he voted Sunday morning.

This was the first time that De Gaulle had ever gone before the nation in a popular vote. He did it under the presidential election system which he himself inaugurated. It was only the second time in French history the electorate participated directly in presidential elections. The first was in 1848.

Results:

Charles de Gaulle	10,504,007 for	43.96%
Francois Mitterrand	7,655,042 for	32.04%
Jean Lecanuet	3,770,771 for	15.78%
Jean-Louis Tixier-Vignancour	1,264,095 for	5.31%
Pierre Marcilhacy	414,056 for	1.73%
Marcel Barbu	278,402 for	1.16%

About 85% of the electorate cast their ballots, leaving the abstention rate the lowest in post-war history.

Some De Gaulle supporters wondered whether he would reject the humiliation of going into a second round of voting against Mitterrand, even though in such a test De Gaulle would be a top-heavy favorite.

Lecanuet, a senator whose main campaign plea was for a united Europe, was blamed by Gaullists for dividing the voters. Lecanuet was running in third place with 16%, but practically all of his votes were carved out of the broad center of the political spectrum which De Gaulle has considered his private domain.

Former Premier Michel Debre said, "in the name of Europe, .M Lecanuet made himself the instrument of French disunion. In the name of democracy, he made himself the instrument of disorder in the Republic."

Bloody Fight At Plantation

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. troops clashed with an estimated regiment of Communists early Monday on the blood-stained battleground of the Michelin rubber plantation, scene of some of the war's fiercest fighting. U.S. officers at the scene said it was believed more than 100 Reds were killed.

Official U.S. spokesmen in Saigon said U.S. casualties were moderate. The fighting involved two battalion-sized units of the 1st U.S. Infantry Division. It was not known whether the enemy were Viet Cong guerrillas or North Vietnamese regulars.

The battle broke out after several light skirmishes Sunday in the huge plantation about 35 miles north-northwest of Saigon.

It was one of two major sweeps staged many miles apart against suspected concentrations of Viet Cong.

The second sweep also began Sunday when a U.S. Marine amphibious task force stormed a Communist coastal stronghold about 260 miles northeast of Saigon.

Killed 14

The Marines, landed from 7th Fleet vessels and helicopters under cover of U.S. Navy planes and offshore shelling, killed 14 Viet Cong, a U.S. spokesman said. He added that another 11 Communists may have been killed by shelling from the destroyers Orleck and Hubbard and from attacks by planes of the 7th Fleet carriers Kitty Hawk and Bon Richard.

The Marine action began with the Leathernecks taking the beachhead without firing a shot. The first wave came ashore from the troopship Monticello just after dawn, landing near the hamlet of Phu Thu.

A second wave followed from the transport Montrose, while other troops were airlifted to the area in helicopters from the amphibious carrier Valley Forge. The helicopter troops deployed in a blocking force inland.

Flew Cover

The area has been a Communist stronghold for many years. The encampment has been a source of major Communist attacks in the central coastal area against government controlled hamlets and military installations.

Elsewhere, the Viet Cong held a complex of three hamlets near Quang Ngai City. Contact has been lost with the popular force platoons in the hamlets, and a relief force that went to their assistance suffered moderate casualties.

Mowed Down

An entire four-man U.S. advisory team was mowed down in the Quang Ngai action, two being killed and two wounded.

Associated Press correspondent George Esper reported from Da Nang that a U.S. observer who flew over the three hamlets controlled by the Viet Cong south of Quang Ngai, saw many bodies on the ground.

Earlier, there were estimates that as many as 200 Viet Cong had been killed in the action, but no one had been close enough to confirm it.

'Conservative'

The U.S. observer reported that the 200 estimate could be "conservative." It was not known how many bodies on the ground were popular force soldiers from the hamlets.

Astronauts Relax, Ask Football Score

Space Center, Houston, Tex. (AP)—Relaxed and cheerful Gemini 7 pilots Frank Borman and James Lovell sped through the second of their world record 14 days in orbit Sunday—and got a news report of an air crash on earth.

"Looks like its safer up here than down there," replied Borman, an Air Force Lieutenant Colonel and command pilot of Gemini 7.

After a relatively quiet day of global travel, Borman and Lovell were told at 9:45 p.m. (CST) to get about 10 hours of sleep. This was the first of the long simultaneous sleep periods the astronauts will have on the flight.

The astronauts gave a glowing report of their second day in space—and heard that around-the-clock efforts to ready another Gemini spaceship for launch were running four hours ahead of schedule.

Ask For Score

They asked for the score of the Houston Oilers-Buffalo Bills football game—and showed a little loss of a sense of earth time. The game hadn't been played yet.

At 1:55 p.m. (EST), mission control reported that Gemini 7 had been given a go-ahead for another day in orbit.

In their first major medical examination since Saturday's launch, they told the chief flight surgeon, Dr. Charles Berry, that they got four to six hours sleep their first night in space.

Berry asked Borman—who is wired with small electrodes to sense how deep he sleeps—about the sleep period.

"Frank, we'd like to get some idea on the depth of that sleep," Berry said. "It appeared to us on the ground that you were sort of in and out most all of the time."

"Affirmative," Borman answered. "It was rather a light sleep."

Borman told Berry that they were preparing their third meal in space. had eaten almost everything in earlier meals.

"We're both saving our gingerbread for dessert," Borman said. Berry asked if the new lightweight spacesuits were comfortable.

'Fairly Comfortable'

"Yes, I think we're both fairly comfortable," Borman said. "It's a little warmer than I thought it would be. "We're running (the cooling system) on full cold, and we're just comfortable."

Among the news reports mission control beamed up to the astronauts were the newspaper headlines of their launch into space, and the "very nice pictures" of the astronaut's wives on front pages.

They were also told that everyone on the recovery aircraft carrier Wasp in the Atlantic was happy with the launch.

"Their theme song is 'I'll Be Home for Christmas," mission control said. The aircraft carrier Wasp is to pick up the Gemini 7 and its two pilots on the morning of Dec. 18.

Lazy Schedule

The astronauts were given a lazy Sunday schedule in space—marked with a few experiments and some physical exercise.

The work day started late Sunday—with a sleep period extending to about 10:30 a.m. (EST).

Lovell's voice broke the radio silence Sunday with, "Good morning, it's about time you guys got to work down there."

"We thought it was about time to put you to work," replied mission control.

"Two weeks vacation with pay," Lovell said cheerfully.

The astronauts may have come up with the answer to a "puzzler" that hit them late Saturday. Something like a scrap of paper or strap had flown up and struck Lovell's window during a maneuver.

Sunday the astronauts saw some things streaming from behind their spacecraft and identified them as calking or explosive cord used to separate the spacecraft from the second stage rocket. It poses no problems. Mission control had deduced that was what the mystery object was.

Gemini Six Plans Going Smoothly

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP)—The Gemini 6 spacecraft was attached to the top of its Titan 2 rocket Sunday—poised to propel astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford into space Dec. 13 to rendezvous with the Gemini 7 crew now circling the globe.

Preparations for firing the second Gemini spacecraft into orbit were proceeding nearly four hours ahead of original plans, making it easier for space agency officials to be optimistic that the unprecedented nine-day schedule separating Gemini launches could be met.

For Navy Capt. Schirra and Air Force Maj. Stafford, Sunday was at least a partial day off. They spent time Sunday morning with their wives, who came to the cape to watch Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. ride into space Saturday.

Rehearsals To Start

Schirra and Stafford planned to spend the rest of the day reviewing the Gemini 7 launch and early orbital activities, then go over their own flight plans. They will start rehearsing their activities in a practice capsule here Monday, NASA said.

The first stage of the Titan 2 rocket which will push Schirra and Stafford into space was erected at Gemini launch complex 19 about 12:35 a.m. (EST) Sunday morning — 10 hours and 5 minutes after Gemini 7 astronauts Borman and Lovell blasted into space from the same spot on earth.

The second stage of the booster was mounted on the first stage at 6 a.m. and the spacecraft swung into position on top of the two-stage rocket three and one-half hours later.

The capsule was mechanically coupled with the booster about 11 a.m. Sunday and passed a check for leaks in the cabin during the afternoon. NASA said it was not scheduled to be electrically connected to the booster until Monday, however.

Board Hikes Interest Rates; President Deplores Action

Washington (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board ordered substantial interest rate increases Sunday night and President Johnson immediately deplored the action.

Effective Monday the board ordered an increase from 4 to 4.5% in the discount rate which banks pay when they borrow money from the federal reserve.

It also raised from 4.5 to 5.5% the maximum interest that may be paid on time deposits put in banks for a specified time period. It left unchanged at 4⅞ the interest ceiling on regular savings accounts.

Anti-Inflationary

The board described its orders as aimed at forestalling inflation. But the action ran counter to the often stated administration position that no interest rate increases are needed to prevent "overheating" in the economic expansion now nearing the five-year mark.

Johnson issued a statement from his Texas ranch noting that the board is an independent agency and acted on its own and then saying:

"I regret, as do most Americans, any action that raises the cost of credit, particularly for homes, schools, hospitals, and factories."

He said further that he particularly regrets that the board's action was taken before January "when we will have before us the full facts on next year's budget, Viet Nam costs, housing starts, state and local spending and other elements in the economic outlook."

'Do Best'

Since the action has already been taken, Johnson said, he will under the circumstances "continue to do my best to give the American people the kind of fully-coordinated well-integrated economic policy to which they are entitled."

He added that such a policy has been so successful in the last 58 months that there has been price stability which he described as necessary to continued economic prosperity.

He said it is his hope that he can continue such a policy.

No Intentions

The board said it has no intention of reducing the present pace of credit expansion but that the actions are designed to dampen the demand of banks for still further extensions "which might add to inflationary pressures."

The vote was 4-3 on raising the discount rate and 6-1 on the action to increase the maximum amount that banks may pay on time deposits.

The board said the actions should have a three-pronged impact:

"One, backing up the government's effort to prevent inflationary excesses from damaging an economy now carrying the added burden of military operations in Viet Nam.

Boost Programs

"Two, bolstering the government's programs to overcome persistent deficits in U.S. balance of payments;

"Three demonstrating anew the U.S. determination to maintain the international strength of the dollar."

Board member J. L. Robertson voted against both actions and George W. Mitchell and Sherman J. Maisel joined him in voting against the increase in the discount rate.

The board said the three members dissented from the discount rate action "on the ground that it was at least premature in the absence of more compelling evidence of more inflationary dangers."

The maximum rates which banks may pay on time deposits, the board said, was raised "to enable the banks to attract and retain deposits of businesses and individuals and thus to make more effective use of savings funds already available in the economy to finance their loan expansion.

"The increase in discount rates is intended to moderate additional bank reliance on short-term borrowing from the federal reserve to meet intensifying loan demands."

The board said it plans to continue to provide "additional reserves to the banking system in amounts sufficient to meet seasonal pressures as well as the credit needs of an expending economy without excesses."

Ticonderoga Jet Lost Over Side

Pearl Harbor, Hawaii (AP)—An A4E Skyraider jet off the aircraft carrier Ticonderoga was lost overboard Saturday 180 miles northeast of Okinawa on a routine training flight, the Navy said Sunday.

A spokesman said the pilot's name was being withheld. He said the plane jumped chocks holding its wheels and fell over the side into the 16,000-foot deep waters. He said the depth precluded recovery.

At 86, Doctor Drives Green Jag

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Hastings—Doc Foote wouldn't think of driving a pink or purple sports car, not at the distinguished age 86. His Jag convertible is green.

After a practice that started in 1905, Dr. E. C. would be a living legend even if he didn't head a medical dynasty. But head one he does, two sons and three grandsons following him into the field he chose as an Ayr schoolboy.

"Actually I haven't been on the job here a full 60 years," said the still-young specialist, apologetically. "You'd have to knock off five or so for the Army and hunting safaris and a little flying."

The Army experience was as a World War I surgeon a few scalpel lengths from the French front lines. The hunting was in virtually all the world hotspots, the flying was as the state's first MD to pilot his own plane.

Flew Jet Trainer

Ever the adventurer, the Hastings flyer started in 1930 and progressed through four or five planes before selling his last one a few years ago. One of his last turns at the stick was in a friend's jet trainer over Alaska—just about the right speed for Doc when he was 82.

"I'm still able to hunt all day and when I'm out of the office I'm usually outdoors," beamed Foote the sportsman. "Bear alone I've killed in Canada, Mexico, Idaho, Wyoming, India, British Columbia and Alaska."

DR. E. C. FOOTE . . . jet pilot, too.

Politics also shares the doctor's dedication, several office signs fairly shouting his GOP conservatism. If it were legal game, medicare would be as much his target as any moose or hippo he ever stalked.

"Just look at all the doctors pulling out of Britain and Canada," he said heatedly. "Medicine has always handled its own charity, and we don't need the government to get into it now."

Same Specialty

An ophthalmologist, Dr. Foote early in his career devoted a year to cataract surgery in India. One doctor son, C. M., is in the same specialty in Hastings' Foote Clinic, the other (Donovan, Sr.) handling ear and throat cases as an otolaryngologist.

"I still see a few patients nearly every day and feel well enough to work full-time," said the elder physician, "but I sort of feel that I owe myself a little time."

Donovan Jr., now in his last year studying general surgery at Omaha University, hopefully will be the first grandson to join the clinic. Bill Beck is considering the location after residency in Iowa City, Iowa; Jerry Anderson apparently is finding satisfaction in Puerto Rican practice.

Anderson's father, Dr. Herbert, is the seventh member of the MD clan and has his own specialty practice in Hastings. Young Beck's father Loren, is a dentist in the Foote building.

The one non-medical branch of the family, at least so far, is that of daughter Mrs. Ralph Kissinger of Fairfield. Her husband is a graduate of Annapolis, and is one Anderson son, Timm.

Also sighting in on an MD is Terance, a high school senior who is another son of Donovan Sr.

Prior to E. C., by the way, the only known ancestral doctor had been one uncle of Civil War days.

"The Foote family never had much of a medical history before," chuckled the youthful oldster, "but we're sure making up for it now."

BRIGHT FUTURE IN NEBRASKA . . .

Dairy Farm Uses Best Cows, Equipment

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

The future of dairying is a bright one, especially if you visit with dairy farmers in southeastern Nebraska who have decided the only way to run a dairy is to get serious about it and go modern with the best in cows and equipment.

To "see" what is happening in the dairy industry requires visits to the dairy farms where new deluxe milking parlors are providing the utmost in modern milking methods and the most extensive moves to make sanitation the prime goal in giving consumers the highest quality product possible.

One of the areas getting a new look in dairy equipment centers around the efforts of Louis Goossen of Beatrice who in his dairy construction and equipment business has completed nearly 200 new units where facilities have been designed to minimize labor and man hours to feed, milk and care for each cow.

INSPECTION IS IMPORTANT . . . Chris Morgan, Lincoln County Health Department sanitarian, and Louis Gossen examine a new bulk milk tank on the Gossen farm.

Doesn't Cost

Goossen says it doesn't cost but it pays the dairyman to take advantage of new dairy equipment and practices.

"The best selling measure for a dairyman is to go visit someone that has gotten really serious and started specializing in dairying. Then it isn't long until another farm gets a new look in its dairying methods," says Goossen.

Chauncey Walker, dairy farmer northwest of Beatrice, says that the utilization of top production sires through artificial insemination coupled with modern dairy equipment is the only route if a person wants to stay in the dairy business.

Richard Hays of Odell is one dairy farmer that is going the whole way in setting up an ultra-modern dairy unit for his 70 cow herd that illustrates what is available today for modern dairy operation.

Sanitation

Holding pens over manure pits and an enclosed feeding area that has an emphasis on cow comfort adjoins a modern milk parlor that rivals any food establishment for sanitation on the Hays farm.

Many of those you talk to in dairying are convinced that the decade ahead will center around a loose housing confinement system with free stalls and a milking parlor.

The goal for the dairy farmer is to produce a large volume of wholesome milk at low cost.

It's likely, say others, that by 1980 the top dairymen will be culling cows that today's average dairy farmer couldn't match and herd averages of 20,000 pounds of milk will be common among top-notch dairymen.

Goossen says the trend to upgrading dairy equipment is moving at such a rate that construction can hardly keep pace with the demand.

Nebraska may have fewer dairy farms but the ones left will be ultra-modern systems that make dairying a specialty instead of a side-line where a few cows are milked after the rest of the farm work is completed, say those looking to the future of dairy production.

Widow Says $345,000 In Jewels Taken

New York (AP) — The widow of Attilio Teruzzi, a minister under the late Italian dictator Benito Mussolini and commander of the blackshirts, reported a $345,000 jewel theft to police Sunday.

Madame Attilio Teruzzi, 72, who said she is an Italian countess but an American by birth, the former Lillian Weinman of New York, discovered the jewelry missing from her Park Avenue hotel suite at 11 a.m. Saturday.

She identified her late husband, whom she married in Rome in 1926, as Mussolini's minister of the interior, minister of imperial Africa and viceroy governor general of Libya.

Teruzzi was sentenced in 1945 to 30 years imprisonment for political and military collaboration with the Nazis. He died April 26, 1950, after being freed because of ill health.

Mrs. Teruzzi said she was absent from the five-room suite at the Mayfair Hotel for a dinner party Friday night and went to bed when she returned at 1 a.m. Saturday.

On awakening she had breakfast, then discovered a jewel box in a nearby dresser had been emptied of seven pieces of jewelry, worth $345,000. She said $250 in currency also was missing.

Teen Terror Ring Broken

Detroit (AP)—A gang of teenage terrorists has been broken up, police said.

The gang, led by a 15-year-old and including three 13-year-olds and three 14-year-olds, was responsible for a crime wave in a west side neighborhood during the late summer and fall months, said Lt. Theodore Sienski.

Police said the boys perpetrated arson, armed robbery, burglary, malicious destruction of property and cruelty to animals. The gang usually wore hoods, made of pillow cases when committing a crime, police said.

Sienski said the gang's initiation rights included slashing of the right wrist as a demonstration of loyalty.

Juvenile authorities are investigating.

Sienski said the gang had "bylaws" which named Jews, Negroes and "frats" as hate objects. A frat is high school slang for well-dressed students.

Poll Shows Solid Public Support Of American Efforts In Viet Nam

By LOUIS HARRIS

The overwhelming majority of the American people—71%—are prepared to continue the fighting in Viet Nam until the United States can negotiate a settlement on its own terms.

Harris

A just completed survey of a cross section of the public clearly indicates solid support for the commitment of U.S. military power to South Viet Nam. The determination to see through a stepped-up scale of battle there is based on the widespread conviction that victory for the Viet Cong would mean a Communist take over of our South Vietnamese allies.

These latest results show that sentiment for the "stop fighting and get out" position has shrunk to well below 10% from a high of 38% last March. At the same time, there has been no precipitous trend in American public opinion toward escalation of the war. To the contrary, between September and this current survey, the number of people who want to carry the ground war into North Viet Nam, at the risk of bringing Red China directly into the conflict, has actually diminished.

As was the case in September, a plurality of Americans still would like to see a blockade imposed on North Viet Nam ports. Opposition to bombing of Hanoi, however, still runs close to 2 to 1. Opposition to the use of atomic ground weapons remains at 5 to 1, and opposition to bombing the China mainland runs close to 6 to 1.

As the fighting in Viet Nam has intensified and American casualties and commitments have mounted, it is apparent that a massive rallying of public opinion behind this effort has taken place. However, the objective of the American people has not changed. Rather than destruction of the North Vietnamese and Chinese, the central purpose of the fighting, in the minds of most U.S. citizens, is to build enough force in South Viet Nam to prevent a Communist take over. As of now, the American people appear to be ready to commit whatever is required to accomplish this end.

The carefully drawn cross section was asked: "In Viet-Nam, should the United States (1) stop fighting now and negotiate but keep our troops there or (2) should we pull out our troops and then negotiate or (3) should we keep fighting until we can negotiate on our own terms?"

TOTAL PUBLIC
Keep fighting, negotiate on own terms	71%
Stop fighting now and negotiate	13%
Pull out troops and negotiate	4%
Not sure	12%

The commitment to the present U.S. course on holding the line in South Vietnam was never clearer than in the trend line established recently in answer to a question that has been repeated at regular intervals throughout 1965:

"All in all, what do you think we should do about Viet-Nam now? We can follow one of three courses: carry the ground war into North Viet Nam at the risk of bringing Red China into the fighting; withdraw our support and troops from South Viet Nam and negotiate; continue to try to hold the line there to prevent the Communists from taking over South Viet Nam. Which do you favor?

	Hold Line	Get Out	Escalate
December	65%	7%	28%
October	59%	11%	30%
September	49%	25%	26%
July	45%	30%	25%
May	47%	31%	22%
March	49%	38%	13%

For the moment, it appears that the steady rise in the escalation column has leveled out. But the group that essentially opposes the war and wants a settlement rapidly on whatever terms can be obtained at the moment appears to be edging ever downward—the recent demonstrations in Washington and elsewhere notwithstanding.

By the same token, there has not been a commensurate rise in sentiment for bombing Hanoi or taking other steps that some more militant critics of U.S. conduct of the war have advocated. Back in September, and again in this most recent survey, people were asked:

"I want to read you a number of positions the administration has taken on Viet Nam. For each, I wish you would tell me if you think the administration is more right or more wrong."

	December	September	May
Nationwide	66%	65%	57%
By politics:
Republicans	60%	56%	52%
Democrats	69%	73%	62%
Independents	67%	60%	53%
GOP voted L.B.J.	68%	70%	57%
Goldwater voters	52%	50%	37%
By region:
East	69%	72%	59%
Midwest	68%	59%	61%
South	69%	62%	52%
West	63%	66%	60%

On the Viet Nam issue; Johnson is winning support where he was previously weak — among Goldwater backers, for example — while slipping some among Democrats and "moderate" Republicans. The latter two groups, however, are still overwhelmingly on his side. Similarly, by region, he has lost some ground in the East and West, but his gains in the Midwest and South are double these losses.

	Not using atomic ground weapons		Not bombing Chinese mainland		Not bombing Hanoi		Not blockading North Viet Nam ports
	December	September	December	September	December	September	December	September
More right	66%	67%	65%	65%	42%	47%	26%	31%

Although comparatively large numbers of Americans do not feel competent to pass judgment on the day-to-day tactics for pursuing military success in Viet Nam, strong support for administration policies continues except for the popular feeling that we ought to blockade North Viet Nam ports.

In view of this national unity behind current U.S. efforts in Viet Nam, it comes as no surprise that 66% of the public gives President Johnson a positive over-all score when asked to rate his handling of the conflict. But some of the shifts in sources of support are rather revealing:

The subject of packers feeding cattle and Nebraska's tax laws drew the most comment from the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association this week as members gathered in Norfolk for their annual convention.

When Iowa Beef Packers Inc. announced plans for extensive cattle feeding of their own cattle in Iowa recently it brought sharp comment from Iowa feeders.

The same thing happened in the Nebraska Feeder convention when Nebraska feeders called for an all-out effort to discourage the fast growing firm that has now become one of "the big three" in meat packing to think twice before the move is made.

M. J. Hankins

M. J. Hankins of Stanton, an outspoken former president of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association described it this way, "We should instruct our state and national officers to start an action program immediately to stop packer and chain store feeding.

"We should meet with Iowa Beef Packers and discourage them. If the idea works we might as well put our feed wagons in moth balls.

"Feeders have the capacity to feed all the cattle the packer needs. Only reason is for market manipulation purposes and in the long run it won't do the packer any good if it comes to the point where packer competes against packer."

One of the major chain stores spent considerable in widespread advertising to tell the public they "didn't feed cattle" after being criticized for having such an operation.

The National Commission on Food Marketing has been exploring the effects of packers and chain stores feeding their own cattle to quite some length in proceedings of the Commission.

Some well known figures in Nebraska political circles spoke as members of the feeders association on state problems.

At one time in the debate on Nebraska's income tax possibilities, Sen Herb Nore of Genoa took the floor as a member of the feeders group and said, "To say the income tax is a replacement tax is almost a dishonesty.

"It looks beautiful on paper but I don't think it will work that way."

Centennial?

There is also going to be some questions asked as to why the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association has refused to go along with collecting funds to promote beef through the Nebraska Centennial.

Discussion on a resolution that reaffirmed the feeders stand in a meeting a year ago not to participate in a check-off of funds for the Centennial beef promotion has caused some people to question if the people directing the organization might be more interested in national affairs than in boosting a Nebraska product.

News media attending the Nebraska Livestock Feeders convention had trouble understanding why they couldn't have copies of resolutions until the meeting had concluded.

A method used that didn't make strong friends of those covering the meeting was to utilize instructions to the board publicly announced that were listed as "not for publication."

If something is discussed in a group of 250 to 300 people from all sections of the state it doesn't mean much to list it as "not for publication".

The Otoe County Extension Service always has an eye catching first paragraph in their weekly news letter that keeps steady readers wondering what will come next week.

An example is the November 26, Otoe County bulletin that begins, "When an inch of rain falls on a 160 acre farm, it delivers 4,356,000 gallons weighing over 18,000 tons. To transport this amount of water would require 544 tank cars or four trains, each over a mile long."

Market Cashier Makes Thorough Check Of IDs

Kingsport, Tenn. (AP)—A man walked into a supermarket here and asked the cashier to cash a check.

"Do you have some identification?" asked Mrs. Margie Castle, the cashier.

The man reached into his mouth and pulled out a denture on which his name was branded.

Mrs. Castle cashed the check.

Tug Burns; Four Crewmen Safe

Juneau, Alaska (AP) — The four crew members of the gutted 130-foot tug Pawtucket, which caught fire Saturday night in the Gulf of Alaska, were reported safe Sunday aboard the 200-foot barge she was towing.

The 17th Coast Guard District said the cutter Sorrell had taken the barge in tow and was heading for the Pye Islands, off the Kenai Peninsula about 100 miles southwest of Seward, the tug's home port.

The Coast Guard said the crew abandoned the Pawtucket and rowed to the barge in a skiff after flames engulfed the steel-hulled tug.

Hot Watches Kept Cool

Mandras, India (AP)—A refrigerator from Singapore was being moved through customs when a wrist watch dropped out. Officials began a check and found 1,500 watches stuffed in the colling mechanism. They arrested the owner.

10 Year Wait

Bombay, India (AP)—Bombay's telephone service has been expanded with the installation of some new telephone exchanges, city officials report, but in other sections there will still be a 10-year wait.

HRUSKA SAYS . . .

Control Of Schools Requires Support

Syracuse (AP)—The decision of whether control of America's schools is to remain in local hands is an issue for the community itself to decide, Sen. Roman Hruska said Sunday.

"If you want to continue to decide how your children are to be educated, you must make up your minds that it is worth the cost and effort," he declared.

"If you abandon this important task to the federal government, then you forfeit the right to determine for yourselves how your schools will be operated," he said in remarks prepared for dedication ceremonies at the new Syracuse—Dunbar High School.

He noted that this year more than one-fourth the entire population—53 million young people are enrolled in the schools, colleges and universities.

The costs, Sen. Hruska continued, are about $36 billion a year to man all our schools—public and private. Just 25 years ago, the figure was $3.4 billion—a tenth of what is spent today.

"As Americans, we have always believed that both the individual and the school system will be best served when education remains primarily the responsibility of local and state governments," he said.

$450,000 Bond

"You people here in Syracuse and Dunbar have demonstrated that principle when you approved the $450,000 bond issue which provided this excellent new school."

He said the wisdom of that principle had been proven in practice—many times—and to a large extent it accounts for the remarkable growth of, and rich diversity in our educational institutions.

The mishap occurred at about 56th and center.

BETTER . . . to preserve antique harp says Frerichs.

Teacher Finds Antique . . . 1798 HARP

By JOHN LEE
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Seward — To harp or not to harp — that was the question facing Kenny Frerichs.

The Concordia Teachers College music professor decided to teach himself to play the instrument of the angels.

He snapped up an offer by a friend to sell him one that supposedly was picked up at an auction in Lincoln.

Great!

Great! A beautiful old carved wood harp that needed only a set of strings and a few other restoration measures to be playable.

But when Kenny took it apart for a much-needed cleaning job, he discovered the instrument's label:

"H. (for Henri) Naderman, "builder of lutes and harps, in service of the queen—all written in French—and a Paris address.

Date 1798

The date, 1798, was written on the label in ink.

After conducting some research, Frerichs found his possession to be one of the last made by the reknowned Parisian company which went out of business in 1810.

"Henri's father," said the musician, "was one of the leading harp makers." Two sons took over the business after his death.

Single Action

But they were making single-action harps, and in 1810, someone invented the double-action instrument and put the veterans out of business.

Frerichs said he has been advised not to destroy his possession's value as an antique. Putting a brace in the back and making other modifications necessary to make it playable, would destroy its originality.

"With an old instrument like this, you're supposed to leave it the way you find it," he joked.

Where From?

"I just wonder where it came from and how it turned up in Nebraska."

So the pianist has given up trying to restring the harp, and has settled for cleaning up the wood, ornately carved with flowers, leaves and a golden eagle.

Frerichs still wants to learn to play one, but says he will probably search for a more conventional model.

Woman Performs Rare Role As Country Doctor At Miller Wood River Valley Medical Clinic

Miller (AP)—A country doctor is a rarity anymore, but it's still more unusual to find a 37-year-old woman filling the role.

Dr. Ruth Christensen is the staff of the Wood River Valley Medical Association Clinic at Miller.

To Recuperate

A native of Lincoln, she returned to Nebraska from Leavenworth, Kan., after the auto accident to recuperate.

As she puts it:

"People I knew kept asking me for advice, and before I knew it I was almost in practice. So, when a group approached me and asked if I'd stay if they set up a clinic and equipped it, I said I would."

School Remodeled

The Valley Medical Association followed. A country schoolhouse was remodeled, fully equipped, including x-ray and cardiograph, and Dr. Ruth went to work.

At first, she said, she thought she'd stay five or six years. But now, she says, her practice is getting big enough and interesting enough so "I might decide to stay for good."

Dr. Ruth said it was a drastic change from city to rural medicine, but when she got "unwound" to a slower pace, she liked it, and calls it a "satisfying practice" even in a town of 140 persons.

She said the "novelty" of being a woman doctor apparently has worn off in Miller and she treats all who come to see her.

From The Note Pad

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Many things pop into and out of the mind in the course of a week's editorial writing, some of which just isn't heavy enough to pursue and some of which just doesn't spark enough thought. For instance, there was the conversation at the appreciation dinner for Nebraska football players last week. It included some good-natured comment from one of the married members of the squad.

Fixin's Were There

After several successive evening meals of hamburger, the player wondered if the bill of fare at home might not be changed. He went to the family deep-freeze and there discovered frozen pheasants, steaks and a variety of other meats. Rather than saying anything to his wife, he simply took a written inventory of the contents and presented it to her. It sounded like an effective way of making a point so we pass it on, even though little else can be made of it. We imagine the football player sat down the next evening to quite an elaborate meal.

Also during the week, we had a casual conversation with City Councilman Carroll Thompson. The day had been made for the councilman by an unusual call he had received from a citizen. A lady called to thank him for the city's having seen to the installation of sidewalks in a certain area of the city. The unusual thing was that the sidewalk passed in front of the caller's home and the installation had cost her in excess of $400.

The average happy or pleased citizen is not one who has just paid out more than $400 for something like a sidewalk. But this lady thinks sidewalks are a good idea and she is ready and willing to do her part. The attitude is one that would be good to practice on the part of everyone.

Also among the week's notes is a personal experience. Having to replace a back door lock recently, a search was made for a lock that would fit the hole already drilled in the door for the old lock. Countless stores were contacted but not one could produce a lock to fit the old hole in the door. It seems that such locks for that size hole are no longer made. Too many things, it seems, follow this same line. Efforts recently to replace several damaged floor tile were fruitless. The old tile was only about five years old but the pattern had been discontinued. The only solution was to put down a completely new floor or replace the damaged tile without a match. The problem was solved by removing tiles from the closet and putting the non-matching tiles in there and the old closet tiles in the main part of the room.

Countless people run into the same thing in matching up carpeting, wallpaper, dishes and many other things. One wonders if manufacturers deliberately change styles so that replacements are impossible and a whole new purchase is required. No doubt the manufacturers would argue that quality is constantly improving and that necessitates a change but the claim is one we would find great difficulty buying. We have a lot of standards for things these days but the trouble is that the standards keep changing. It seems remarkable, even, that one foot still equals 12 inches and vice versa. But it could develop the ingenuity of the nation as you are either an inventive person or you pay the price of change.

Having opened with food, it might be appropriate to close with the same subject. From a publication entitled "Geriatric Focus" comes this report on the elderly: "In our efforts to provide the aged with proper diet, we frequently overlook the fact that what is most important to them is not so much what they eat, as with whom they eat.

"We must take into account the isolation and aloneness of older people; we should always remember that food eaten in solitude seldom has 'the added condiment of another's presence, which can transform the simplest fare into a ceremonial act with all its shaded meanings'."

Atmosphere For Meal

Certainly, that statement is most appropriate in regard to the elderly as they are the most likely to be alone but it is a universal truth for all people. The dinner eaten alone is not like the dinner eaten in the company of others. In fact, the whole environment of the meal is just about as important as the food itself. Serve a plate of hot dogs for supper and you might get some grumbling but the same bill of fare on a picnic goes over with a bang. Boil a hot dog in water and it is one thing—cook it over an open fire and it is another.

Time, too, can be an important part of the meal. Sit down to dinner with only 10 minutes in which to eat and things are one way but sit down with all the time you want and the meal is greatly improved. Given just the right setting and circumstances, any cook would have a difficult time putting on a meal that was not successful. The opposite, of course, is an obvious truth that any good cook would want to bear in mind.

"Down, Boy—Up, Back There—Down, Over Here—Hold It—"

On Foreign Junketing

The American Congress probably is the most foreign travelled body in history.

Currently something like 100 legislators are making foreign trips, costing the taxpayers at least $400,000. Presumably they are going abroad to widen their perspective and to learn more about their job of appropriating money and passing laws.

We hope this is so and can assume that there is some educational value in any sort of travel. Some of the legislators will learn that the earth is approximately round and that there actually are other countries. That's better than nothing.

The error here is not so much in travel per se. That can be beneficial. But it is the assumption of an elite status in which Congress permits itself privilege beyond reason. It is too easy for a group of legislators to figure out a pleasureable trip at the country's expence and for which there is no substantial reason. And it follows that it is even better if the traveler can drop in at an embassy abroad and pick up as much counterpart currency as he can carry to be used as pocket money, without audit, in the country he may be in.

What is needed in this foreign travel matter is a little good judgment and a true sense of duty. It is a job for Congress itself to attack first, being careful not to prevent needed trips, but being careful to eliminate the boondoggling kind.

If the legislators find themselves unwilling or unable to do that, then it is the public problem to elect a better grade of representatives. As it is the free loaders are fouling the public image of a service that could be quite good and needed.

Cold Winter Forecast

Now that the second week in December has got underway there are two subjects of prime importance. One is Christmas. The other is what sort of a winter are we going to have?

As for Christmas, we'll leave that up to the seven-year-olds. They are the experts. They will never know as much about that blessed holiday as they know right now. It is the first important study of childhood.

The weather, now, that's something different. We have developed that into an adult, unreliable science. But we can say that by all the old-fashioned portents, we are in for a dinger of a winter. The signs are all present.

Cattail heads are longer than usual. The woodchucks are carrying more fat than usual. The wasps have built their nests higher up in the trees. Corn husks are tighter and the onion skins are thicker.

The professional meteorologists would like to forecast on different terms. They talk of high pressures, low pressures and jet air streams. But nature speaks in terms of thicker fur, more fat and high nests, above the possible snow line. And they are all here this year. If they are correct we are due for an old-fashioned winter. And if you want to know about old-fashioned winter, read "Snowbound." Or talk to a survivor of the blizzard of '88.

The weather presently is deceivingly warm. But our best advice is to take a trip to the Orange Bowl game and stay south as long as you can, afterward. Plan a trip to Arizona or Mexico. Cold weather is good for conditioning the soil. But it is no good for human beings.

A Little Crowing

Nebraskans might be excused for a small show of pride in the results of a recent survey. The survey uncovered no use of habit-forming drugs or pills by students on the University of Nebraska campus, a claim made earlier on the basis of a report by the City-County Health Department.

There are three areas where campus life has been disrupted at some colleges across the nation. Occasionally one hears of a moral breakdown on campus, the use of drugs or extensive cheating. The University of Nebraska, Nebraska Wesleyan University and Union College in Lincoln, as well as other colleges and universities in the state, have not been touched by any such problem.

Perhaps we are not lily white in all three categories but whatever faults do exist have not reached the epidemic proportions they have in some places. Nebraska has even been relatively free of the political extremism that has afflicted campus life at some institutions.

Some few would no doubt say that this was an example of sterility in the state and its people. It is our opinion that the situation demonstrates the advantages of life in the kind of atmosphere or environment that is found in Nebraska.

Nebraska's social structure is one with a good sense of values, not strung with impossible demands, exaggerated goals and deep personal frustrations. One would not want even to approach a state of apathy, and we have not, but a good understanding of reality is a firm foundation on which to build. It is this kind of understanding that contributes to the lack of artificial means of escape among our students as well as most Nebraskans.

Rights Workers Are Hounded Out

WASHINGTON—It doesn't pay to stick your neck out as a champion of civil rights these days. You are driven out of the South and you get no support from the Johnson administration in the North.

Moreland G. Smith, prominent Montgomery, Ala., architect, campaigned for the reelection of Johnson last fall, also served as chairman of the Alabama Advisory Committee to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

Last week he folded up his business and left for Atlanta. His architectural associates in Alabama made it clear that they would be frozen out if he remained with the firm.

Earlier, Hugo Black, Jr., son of the courageous Supreme Court justice by that name, had to leave Birmingham, where he had lived all his life. His law practice had been boycotted.

More recently the Albert Heffners were forced out of McComb, Miss., after they befriended civil rights workers. Heffner is an insurance man.

In Washington they got temporary employment with the Office of Economic Opportunity under Sargent Shriver, and with Community Relations, formerly under ex-Governor Leroy Collins of Florida. However, Heffner has lost his job with Community Relations, and more recently Mrs. Heffner was told to take a civil service examination as a typist. She has never studied as a typist, doesn't want to be a typist, and it would take her several months to become proficient as a typist. She is skilled at human relations, a facility which the poverty program badly needs. Nevertheless she was told to take a typing test.

Sargent Shriver and the poverty program officials deny that any pressure was exerted by Senators Jim Eastland or John Stennis of Mississippi to fire the Heffners, but those on the inside say otherwise. Unfortunately Shriver, a skilled and dedicated administrator, can't possibly know all that's going on inside his two-far-flung organizations.

Budget cuts have forced the space agency to cut out six spacecraft from the moon program. This means the elimination of all unmanned flights of the advanced Apollo spacecraft to be used eventually in carrying the first men to the moon.

In other words, the advanced model will be untested when the astronauts ride it to the moon.

Of course, all the components will be thoroughly tested, and a less sophisticated Apollo capsule will be sent into orbit on a shakedown flight.

Meanwhile, Astronaut David Scott has been assigned to remain outside the Gemini capsule for a full orbit early next year. This will amount to a 25,000-mile walk in space.

Imported Cups Not For White House But Ranch

WASHINGTON—The White House is incensed at printed reports that a large order of English-made "Hunt Club" boullion cups was intended for White House use at the recent dinner-dance for Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon.

Actually, the cups that were ordered by a member of the White House staff were personally paid for by President and Mrs. Johnson, and were for use at the LBJ ranch in Texas.

A law passed by Congress in 1914 requires that all presidential china, crystal and silver purchased by the government for the executive mansion must be of American manufacture. Beginning with Wilson, this order has been meticulously observed by all presidents.

A newsman recently reported in his syndicated column that Patsy Derby of the White House staff rushed to a Georgetown shop to order some English-made boullion cups in time for the Snowdon's visit.

He said samples were hastily flown to the ranch, so that Lady Bird could make her selection, and that when an insufficient quantity was found in this country, the New York importer telephoned the English factory to have more flown over. The columnist breathlessly added that the cups were delivered to the White House—"just before Princess Margaret arrived."

The facts are that boullion was not even served at the Johnson's gala dinner-dance for Tony and Meg. The first family, did, however, have numerous Thanksgiving-week guests at the ranch, and they expect to entertain West German Chancellor Erhard and Pakistan President Ayub Khan there during December.

It is perhaps debatable whether the President should have selected English ware for his personal use, at a time when he is urging his fellow citizens to "see America first;" is requiring that our overseas embassies purchase only American-made China and glassware; and has drastically reduced the amount of duty-free goods that Americans can bring from abroad—all in the interest of improving our balance-of-payments position. It is clear, however, that no laws were broken.

President and Mrs. Johnson, incidentally, have not yet placed their own LBJ stamp on the White House china room. To date the executive mansion has sufficient glassware and crystal left from previous administrations to take care of large dinners of state.

At present-day functions the damask-spread tables are ordinarily set with the Truman Lenox, or the Eisenhower Castleton china; and either the unadorned crystal goblets and wine glasses selected by the Kennedys, or the cut-glass crystal of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration.

ALFRED BINET

Profiles In Science

Almost everybody today is familiar with the expression, "IQ," which is the abbreviation of "intelligence quotient." Some people are too conscious of intelligence quotients, misusing this important tool of psychology and treating a "high" one as a symbol of social status and a "low" one as something of which to be ashamed — in others.

All the modern pother about intelligence quotients, and the business of comparing them, goes back to Alfred Binet, who was born in France in 1857 and died there in 1911.

He is best known for his work with the feeble-minded, and for the invention of his famous scale for measuring the intelligence. Many new scales have been invented since, some of which do a better and more refined job, but Binet's was the first.

For many years before making up his scale Binet had been interested in child psychology. He had made careful and detailed observations of the mental and physical development of his own children.

At the turn of the century he was an important mover in the founding of the Society for Child Psychology in France, an organization that did vitally important work for many decades and which is still in being. He also organized a teaching program to train teachers of normal, feeble-minded and exceptionally bright children.

While working with the public schools, he realized the appalling lack of facilities for feeble-minded children. He also realized that the chief reason for this neglect was the lack of any standards by which the mentally defective could be found among the others. Unless they were so feeble-minded it was obvious, they got no special care or teaching.

The scale was developed by a relationship of age to ability. But it was objected then, and it still is, that instead of ability, the Binet test and others measure accomplishment, not the same thing though certainly of interest in determining intelligence.

According to many psychologists, no test ever devised can cancel out family background and neighborhood advantages. Children from families with good incomes, books and good homes and of broadening experiences such as travel do better on almost all tests than children—just as smart — from poor, "disadvantaged" backgrounds.

Psychology, it has often been said, is not a true science in that its conclusions are too subjective and cannot be proved. Binet started the long, discouraging road to the respectability for the study of psychology. He was very interested in psychiatry and made an important study of mental illness.

His influence was also important in the development of special teaching methods both for bright and dull students. And he did considerable investigation of the mental frame of mind known as suggestibility, the basis of hypnosis.

Pupils Sometimes Allowed To 'Get By'

A survey of how some students "get by" in school brings out some surprising facts.

Jane, a graduate student in college preparing for elementary school teaching, had no conception of the real meaning of a fraction. She knew the word. She said that in any problem she always multiplied by the numerator or divided by the denominator to get the answer. Her method of approach to all world problems was some form of guessing.

Jane had gotten by through all of her grade school, high school and four years of college without anyone discovering that she did not really understand fractions.

It is not that Jane could not understand. Fifteen minutes of careful explanation was all that was required. She was forced to think about what fractions actually are and not rush off into some pattern of thought that might by chance get the answer.

The new mathematics in vogue in elementary schools is putting the spotlight on the haphazard manner in which too many students have guessed their way through basic mathematics.

Prospective elementary school teachers must necessarily take a course in modern mathematics and understand it well enough to explain it to the children. Knowing this, many of them struggle for complete understanding of mathematics for the first time in their careers. A surprising number of these young men and women voluntarily are taking a course in remedial arithmetic as preparation for the course in modern mathematics.

Too many pupils give up the struggle for understanding as they work their way through the grades with mediocre success.

☆ ☆ ☆

Pat is such a pupil. In the eighth grade, asked to list some personal pronouns, he included several verbs and adjectives. It developed that he had no clear idea what a pronoun really is. Neither did he know how to find out by looking in his English book.

For some reason Pat had never discovered the usefulness of the index!

Once he found it was possible to understand things exactly and find them through the index, his progress in his English class was so rapid as to be called amazing. All he needed was a little direction in solving his specific problems of learning.

Such failures could be avoided by the proper early start. The evidence seems to indicate that a child who is expected by the school to learn, does so; while the child of whom little is expected produces little.

Miss Kaufman

Lincoln, Neb.

What Lona L. Trott wrote for the Lincoln Outlook Club (Star, December 1) about the invaluable services of Bernice Kauffman in the reference department of the Lincoln City Library was unexpressly written for everyone who has made use of Miss Kauffman's services in the library.

Miss Trott surely spoke for the librarian and the members of the library board, for they well know how difficult it will be to replace Miss Kauffman. Miss Kauffman knows how to make a reference department in a library do what a reference department is supposed to do. She is not only eminently efficient, but always courteous, thoughtful and gracious. Her decision to leave the library, for whatever reason, is an immeasurable loss.

Limits Of 'Right'

Lake Worth, Fla.

It is to be hoped that Alan J. Pickering saw the television news broadcast recently about the two GI prisoners the Viet Cong commies released to permit them to join and lead anti-Vietnam war demonstrations after getting out of the army.

The Viet Cong let it be known that the protest demonstrations already staged encouraged them to release the prisoners for such an avowed purpose. The Negro member of the pair declared he had not been brainwashed by the Viet Cong.

I don't know enough about the John Birch Society's doctrine to be "brainwashed" by their propaganda, radical or otherwise, but I do know that wild mass protest demonstrations and denunciations of the policies of our chosen leaders before the world are not needed as "proof" of either freedom or patriotism.

The "right to be wrong" does not include murder or attempts to hamstring this nation's war effort for bringing freedom to less privileged nations of the world and protecting a continuation of our own.

Rise In TB Surprising: Dr. Rogers

Omaha (UPI)—"A surprising increase in new active cases of tuberculosis has been reported thus far in 1965," according to Dr. E. A. Rogers, director of the Nebraska State Department of Health.

He said Sunday, "A total of 112 new active cases of tuberculosis has been reported in Nebraska to Nov. 1, 1965, compared with 83 cases in the same period in 1964.

"This considerable increase in cases shows that tuberculosis is a stubborn and far from vanquished disease. The number of new active cases began to fall about 20 years ago but in the past 2 or 3 years Nebraska figures show that this decline has definitely slowed up.

"The United States Public Health Service reports there were more than 50,000 new active cases of tuberculosis in the country in 1964. These figures indicate that the long continuing advance against this disease particularly in the large cities is at a stand still."

Dr. Rogers said, "We in Nebraska need to increase our efforts to overcome this threat of tuberculosis." More funds are needed, he said, to continue the efforts in the fields of tuberculosis detection, treatment, follow-up, education and research until the disease has been brought under control and eventually eradicated.

He said, "To insure tangible results—here and now—Nebraskans are urged to support the Christmas seal campaign."

Dr. Rogers is a member of the board of directors of the Nebraska Tuberculosis Association.

PROPAGANDA BOOBYTRAPPED

A U.S. soldier walks past an innocent-looking Viet Cong propaganda stall (top) while on patrol through a jungle area 20 miles north of Saigon, near Tan Phuoc Kanh. Propaganda posted on the stall proved deadly when a soldier attempted to pull down the slimsy structure and was struck by the blast of two exploding shrapnel grenades planted in one of the supporting bamboo poles near the blackboard at the left of the structure. Bottom photo shows U.S. soldier awaiting evacuation after being wounded in the blast. Radio operator is summoning ambulance helicopters.

'Boston's Strangler In Custody'

Boston (UPI)—The identity of the Boston strangler is known and police already have the guilty person or persons in custody, Atty. Gen. Edward W. Brooke said Sunday night.

Brooke also said "police know, for the most part, who's responsible" for the series of 28 gangland murders in greater Boston in the past 21 months.

Commenting on other aspects of crime in the state, the attorney general said the Massachusetts bookie industry now has its own lobbyists on Beacon Hill who strive to protect illegal gambling's vested interests.

It is the first time that Brooke has flatly stated that law enforcement officials know the identity of the Boston strangler. At least 11 women were strangled in similar fashion in eastern Massachusetts in 1962 and 1963.

Although his office knows who is responsible for the Boston stranglings, Brooke said, "We have not, at the present time, evidence which would enable any police department in any of these cases . . . to make an arrest."

No Indictment

He said investigators also do not have sufficient evidence to get an indictment from a grand jury.

"We do, however, have sufficient information that leads us to believe that we know who the stranglers are," he said.

"We will move at the appropriate time, and the appropriate time will be when we get sufficient evidence to make the arrests and to empanel and present evidence before a grand jury," he said.

Brooke said the guilty person or persons now are in custody but he declined to say where. However, a prime suspect is known to be a patient at Bridgewater State (mental) Hospital who has confessed to the strangling of 13 women and sexual crimes against scores of others.

Regarding the gangland killings, Brooke said police "are not in the dark and the public ought to realize that the police are not."

However, as in the case of the stranglings, police do not have enough information now to make arrests, he said.

Police Thwarted

"Fear, intimidation, and reprisals" have thwarted police efforts to solve the slayings.

He said that if courageous people in private life will not come forward, police are forced to try to get information from persons inside the underworld—stool pigeons.

"The most reliable information of the crime commission came from persons who were theselves involved in the illegal operations and who, either because of a change in conscience or for some other motivations, came forth," Brooke said.

Because of bookie lobbyists at the state capitol, Brooke said, he is not optimistic about passage of a bill which would enable police to arrest a bookie without a warrant. He said the bookie industry is tremendously lucrative and "they are always at work to protect their vested interests just like other vested interests."

Death, Santa Claus Key Figures In NWU Play

By JOHN DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

An experiment in 20th Century "religious drama" seemed to prove a success with the audience which attended the forty-minute play put on by the experimental theater class of Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Though most admitted they did not "fully understand all the symbolism of the play," the eight students who performed managed to keep the rapt attention of the audience from start to finish.

Purpose of the play was like many conventional plays — to present an idea and give a moral — but techniques used to do this were different than most are accustomed to.

Beat poetry, choral speech, music, sound effects, pantomine, and contemporary drama are churned together to hit the audience with a singular impression of what a 20th Century Christmas has become and what it should actually be.

Allegorical Figures

The two central figures in the play are Death and Santa Claus. But in this play they become allegorical figures whose purpose is to point out the lack of love "or understanding" in the modern world.

Santa Claus has his red suit and triangular hat, but he is a far cry from the "ho, ho" Santa Claus. Santa wanders onto the stage a despondent and withered looking individual who is unable to give away all the goodies he has. Santa has "so much to give and no one will take it."

Death, a lanky actor in a skeleton suit, marches in to comfort Santa and tell him the way the world runs. Death's talk turns Santa into a super salesman who spends his time selling stock in market ventures.

But when Santa stops trying to "give" and begins to "sell," Santa discovers that mankind's greed and blindness bring destruction.

Only Through Love

Death is eventually overcome by the "angry crowd" and the innocent honesty of a child is used to make both Santa Claus and the audience realize that it is only through "love that joy is born and that man can truly be said to exist."

A prologue and epilogue presented in chorus form highlight and climax the well-done play.

The play will be presented again at 7 p.m. Dec. 12 th at the Second Baptist Church. A final performance will be given on Dec. 13th at noon at the First Presbyterian Church for the meeting of the Lincoln Ministerial Association.

Members of the cast include: Marjorie Barnes, Crickett Baxter, John Carter, Brian Davies, Charles Danskin, Judy Guida, Bonnie Jochens, Merrie Knight and Cheryl Young.

Crosby Doubts If Pope Understands

. . . APPEAL DISCUSSED

Former Nebraska Gov. Robert Crosby visited condemned killer Duane E. Pope at the Penitentiary Sunday and the court-appointed defense lawyer said, "I'm still not sure he fully comprehends what has happened."

A Federal District Court jury Friday rejected an insanity defense and ordered death in the electric chair for the admitted killer of three persons in a Big Springs, Neb., bank robbery six month ago.

Pope was visited Saturday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Pope of Roxbury, Kan., and the family's minister, the Rev. Charles Wretling of Canton, Kan.

Only Visitor

But prison officials said Crosby was Pope's only visitor Sunday.

"I discussed with him the problems that will be encountered in connection with our appeal," said Crosby, who has vowed to carry the case to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

First appeal step will be the routine filing of a motion for a new trial, setting out what Pope's attorneys allege to be trial errors. The five-day period for filing such a motion expires Wednesday and Crosby said he and his associate defender, Prof. Wallace Rudolph of the University of Nebraska Law College, probably will ask an extension of that period.

Pope's date with death in Nebraska's electric chair was set by Federal District Judge Robert Van Pelt for next March 3, but appeal moves are expected to stay the date.

In the meantime, Pope marks time in a safe-keeping cell in the prison's segregation unit. He wears the white coveralls prescribed for all convicts in the unit, and emerges from his cell only to see visitors in a nearby office or to get exercise in a yard adjoining.

A stone's throw away in a white walled basement room stands the bulky electric chair in which Nebraska exacts the death penalty.

Starkweather Last

Last to die in it was the notorious Charles Starkweather, executed June 25, for involvment in a three-day 1958 murder spree.

Twelve persons have died in the Nebraska electric chair since it was built about 50 years ago. Barring a reversal of the death sentence on appeal, and assuming federal authorities elect to carry out the sentence in Nebraska facilities, Pope would be the 13th.

Pope was charged with and convicted of entering the Farmers State Bank of Big Springs June 4, five days after graduation from McPherson (Kan.) College; command eering more than $1,500 of the bank's funds and shooting four bank employe witnesses as they lay face down on the bank floor. Three were killed and the other was maimed.

Bus Firm Doesn't Like Smell Of Perfume Proposal

Buffalo, N.Y. (AP)—The Niagara Frontier Transit system turned its nose up Sunday at a proposal that it perfume bus exhausts to reduce noxious fumes.

The proposal to sweeten the smell of the system's 500 diesel-engined buses "would just substitute one odor for another," William W. Kunz, vice president in charge of maintenance for the company, said.

The practice of trying to sweeten the smell of buses was tried in Cleveland for three years and was "expensive and just made engines smokier," he added.

The scenting proposal was made Thursday by Councilman Albert J. Petrella.

lion, with an angry yell of pain, jerks back his paw so abruptly that Androcles is thrown on his back]. Steadeee! Oh, did the nasty cruel little Christian man hurt the sore paw? [He gives the thorn another pull. The lion roars and snaps his jaws with a terrifying clash]. Oh, mustnt frighten um's good kind doctor, um's affectionate nursey. That didnt hurt at all: not a bit. Just one more. Just to shew how the brave big lion can bear pain, not like the little cry baby Christian man. Oopsh! [The thorn comes out. The lion yells with pain, and shakes his paw wildly]. Thats it! [Holding up the thorn]. Now it's out. Now lick um's paw to take away the nasty inflammation. See? [He licks his own hand. The lion nods intelligently and licks his paw industriously]. Clever little lionypiony! Understands um's dear old friend Andy Wandy. [The lion licks his face]. Yes, kissums Andy Wandy. [The lion wagging his tail violently, rises on his hind legs, and embraces Androcles, who makes a sory face and cries] Velvet paws! Velvet paws! [The lion draces in his claces]. Thats right. SHAW ALPHABET READING KEY . . . from book at library.

Shaw's New Alphabet Work Stirs Interest, Curiosity Among Readers

Much comment and curiosity has resulted from the George Bernard Shaw Alphabet Edition of "Androcles," which has been on the Bennett Martin Library shelves since April, 1963.

Although only seven persons have actually checked out the new alphabet work during that time, Library Director Charles Dalrymple says it has attracted many curiosity seekers and interested persons to scan it while browsing in the library.

Published in 1962 as provided by the late Mr. Shaw's will, the hard-cover editions were distributed free to all public libraries in the British Commonwealth and the United States and to all national libraries in the rest of the world.

Shaw, who died in 1950, had stipulated in his will that the income from his estate for 21 years be used to promote a phonetic alphabet.

According to Sir James Pitman in the introduction, "Shaw's Alphabet is more legible and one-third more economical in space than traditional printing, and this should lead to a great increase in reading speed."

Kingsley Read, a freelance designer and alphabet aficionado, was chosen to design the type fonts with which to print the so-called Shaw Alphabet Edition of "Androcles."

In 1942, Read had sent a preliminary version of his final effort to Shaw, who responded with a postcard saying, "This is far and away the best alphabet with the best head at the back of it that has come my way."

Vital Rhodesia Dam Mined?

London (AP) — Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley declared Sunday he has reason to believe the white settler government of Rhodesia has mined the Kariba Power Dam to keep that key to the central African economy from falling into the hands of its foes.

Bottomley spoke to newsmen after returning from African talks on Rhodesia. He visited Britain's Commonwealth partners in the area and was the chief negotiator with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda in working out conditions for the stationing of British planes in Zambia to patrol the Kariba Dam area, on the Rhodesia-Zambia frontier.

"I said I had reason to believe the dam could be blown up, In which case the very thing that Mr. Kaunda fears —the turning off of the switch —would be achieved, not temporarily, but for all time," Bottomley said.

Pressing

He confirmed that Kaunda had been pressing for British troops to cross into Rhodesia from the Zambian border. He made it equally clear that Britain was not ready to go so far at this moment for fear of touching off civil war —and destroying the vital dam in the struggle.

Kariba Dam blocks the Zambezi River into a lake on the border between Rhodesia and Zambia. These countries are joint owners of the project, which supplies electricity for Zambia's copper mines. But it is less vital to Rhodesia's economy, since the Rhodesians can switch to thermal power stations and fire them with their own coal from the Wankie mines.

The powerhouse to the dam —the most logical site for scorched-earth explosives — lies on the Rhodesian side, in a virtually impregnable military position. Water from Kariba Lake passes through it and drives six big generators. Even a parachute attack probably could not be launched with a sufficient element of surprise to forestall sabotage if the explosives are already in place, as Bottomley says they are.

Trump

Although the Rhodesian regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith apparently counts the dam as one of its trumps, Bottomley indicated that Britain feels it holds another in the diplomatic tug of war that brought the African nations into the game last week.

The organization of African Unity (OAU) warned at a meeting in Addis Ababa last Friday that unless Britain snuffed out Smith's regime by Dec. 15 its 36 member nations would break diplomatic relations with Britain. Alluding to this ultimatum, Bottomley told newsmen:

"The British government and people have no intention of being pushed around by people who want us to take decisions which are irresponsible."

African States Plan War Against White Rhodesia

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia (AP)—The African states have agreed in principle to declare war on Rhodesia if Britain fails to put down that white-ruled colony's revolt in 10 days. A five-nation action committee has been charged with the military planning.

Nigeria's minister of state for foreign affairs, Nuhu Bamali, reported no declaration of war would come until after Dec. 15. A wekend conference of African defense and foreign ministers decided that unless Britain crushed the rebellion by then all 36 members of the Organization of African Unity (OAU), including nine members of the British Commonwealth, would sever diplomatic relations with London.

"If Britain has not responded to our resolutions by then we feel she will have abdicated her responsibility and we can attack Rhodesia without this being an attack on Britain itself," Bamali declared in an interview.

Top officials in London felt the threat was serious, but should not be taken as the final word. They pointed to economic aid and trade privileges Britain grants the African Commonwealth members. These would be lost if the OAU goes ahead with its plans. The Commonwealth countries also receive almost all their military equipment and training from Britain. So did Rhodesia.

Gov. Frank B. Morrison was presented with a plaque by Bauer in recognition of his cooperation with the Swiss Scout Association in international friendship.

John W. Hossack presented the names of eighty-seven men who were commissioned to serve in 1966 as members of the council and district commissioner staff.

Mullen presided at the dinner meeting at which Mayor Dean H. Petersen, a member of the regional executive committee, installed the 1966 officers. Lawson was presented with a statuette in appreciation of his services as president.

Dawson Begins Another Search

. . . THIS TIME FOR HIMSELF

Costa Mesa, Calif. (AP)—Donald Dawson is again in search of a life.

Dawson, who at 28 already has gone in quest of his father lost at sea and his brother lost in the jungles of South Viet Nam, now searches for a new life of his own.

Still weakened by malaria contracted during four months he was held prisoner by the Viet Cong, Dawson set out this weekend for Oregon and what he hopes is a chance to find himself and his health.

Set Back

"The search in Viet Nam set me back quite a bit, financially and physically," Dawson told a newsman amid the confusion attendant to moving a family of six.

A handsome, red-haired man, he sat with a sag, elbows resting on the chair arms, his hands dangling loose from the wrists. His handshake was weak, but his blue eyes and smile were bright.

"There's a farm up there in Oregon where we can live off the land," he said. "I know I can open up the season on deer and elk, and we'll live on that."

Heartier Fare

The fare will be heartier than anything he has eaten since August, when the Red guerrillas released him from a jungle prison camp after telling him his brother Dan, 27, was dead.

Don's search for Dan, a U.S. Army spotter plane pilot who disappeared over Red territory Nov. 6, 1964, became one of the legends of the jungle war.

But it also left Don a shadow of his former self. Since he returned home he has been able to eat ltitle more than prepared baby foods and liquids.

Meal A Day

"I'm up to eating one meal a day now" he said. "If I eat much more I can't keep it down." He methodically smokes his way daily through two packs of cigarettes, the smoke drifting up through the brush of a red mustache that adds another angle to the drawn planes of his face.

"It's hard getting on your feet again," he said. "And I can't see any future for me here, in Southern California."

He returned to Costa Mesa because that's where his wife Jeanne, 27, and the four children stayed during the 10 months he was in Viet Nam.

Worked

Jeanne, attractively slim with large, dark eyes, has worked to provide for the children since Don, then captain of an oil exploration ship, got word that Dan was missing and left for Viet Nam.

Last week she quit her job as assembler in a light manufacturing plant, but she's ready to go to work again. "I'm sure I'll have to, until Don gets back on his feet again," she said.

Don is on his feet, but barely more. "His doctor told him he should lift weights and exercise to get his strength back," his wife said. "Together we went to a store and bought the weights, but I had to carry them home for him."

More Rapidly

Don thinks he's recovering more rapidly now. "It's been a month since I've had a malaria attack, and the doctors say now I may not have another one."

It's the possibility of another attack that he sees as his main obstacle to getting a job on the sea again.

"If I took a ship to sea and then had to be brought in. I'd never be allowed to go out again," he said. "And I've never worked on the beach before.

Started On Water

"I started out on the water with Dad when I was eight years old, up in Alaska, ferrying people to the Kenai Peninsula," he said.

Since then he has been chief officer aboard several oil exploration boats, skippered yachts, and worked as commercial fisherman.

His father, too, was a fisherman, and just seven years to the day prior to Dan's disappearance, 49-year-old George Dawson vanished when his 30-foot lobster boat ran onto the rocks off Santa Catalina Island.

Don spent days in deep-sea diving gear looking for his father's body, but all he ever found were his boots and coat.

Only Dan's Vest

His search for Dan ended also with only an article of clothing — a vest the Viet Cong said was his. "But I'll be going back there when the war's over," he said. "I have contacts there who have promised to lead me to his grave. It might be 15 years before I'll be able to go, but I'll go."

The most immediate search he faces, however, is for a new life with his family on the 30-acre farm 15 miles outside of Astoria, Ore. "We'll just be caretakers," he said. It's a life they'll all looking forward to:

"This will be the first Christmas we'll have had together since we've been married," said Jeanne. "As soon as we get moved into our house I'll go out and cut the biggest tree I can find. I don't care how long before Christmas it is.

"Then I'll keep him home until he gets well, but probably not long afterward." She shrugs and smiles. "I knew he was a wanderer when I married him."

SEARCHER . . . Dawson with his son George.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Semi-Conscious State Lasts 15 Years For Victim

Murphys, Calif. (AP)—Nurses at Bret Harte Hospital say an accident victim is beginning her 15th year of semi-conscious survival.

The condition of Abbie Lelsh Howland, a 45-year-old former nurse, is still listed as "fair," just as it was when she entered the hospital with brain injuries on Dec. 4, 1951.

AFL-CIO Leadership Shift Due At Parley

San Francisco (AP)—The AFL-CIO, now 10 years old and claiming 15 million members, may replace a third of its 29-man executive council at its national convention in San Francisco this week.

Labor sources here say the changes are favored by President George Meany himself, who was due by train in neighboring Oakland Sunday. The biennial convention begins next Thursday.

Meany, now 71, is considered certain to be re-elected for a two-year term, sources say. Less certain of election by the convention's 2,000 delegates are a number of council leaders in their 70s and even 80s, or those ousted by their own union groups.

The last group includes David J. McDonald, who lost reelection as United Steelworkers president, and James B. Carey, resigned head of the International Union of Electrical workers.

Harry Bates, 83-year-old former president of the bricklayers, also may step down, opening the way for new, younger candidates.

Automation and union opposition to section 14B (right to work) of the Taft-Hartley Law promise to be main discussion topics among delegates.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Secretary of State Dean Rusk will be in San Francisco next Friday to address the delegates and Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz will speak a day earlier at the convention opening.

Maritime, metals and service trades open their department conventions Monday. Meany is scheduled to address maritime leaders Monday morning.

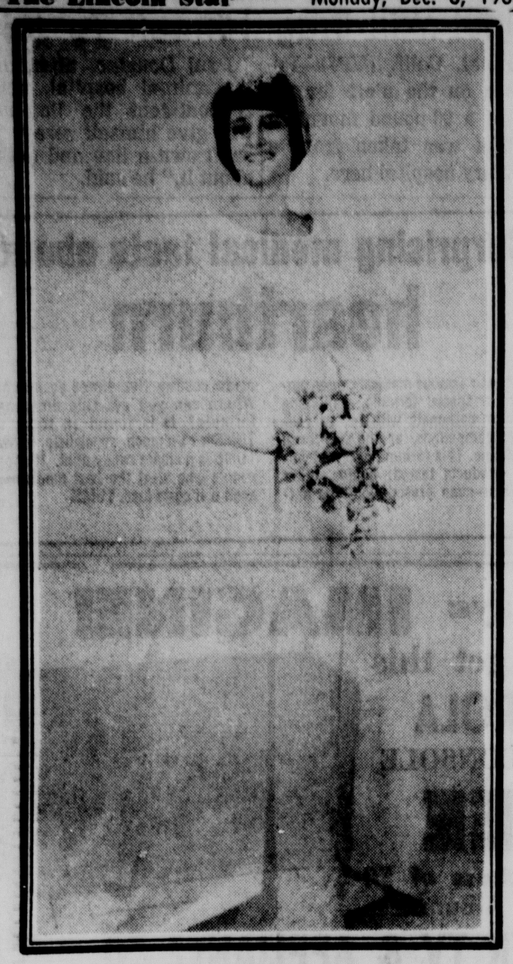
NEWS of the suburban areas

With only 17 more shopping days left in Lincoln's stores Santa's little helpers are going to have to hustle through their duties. The handy charge-a-plate is probably the most widely used item to complete the Christmas list—and what a surprise its results bring on December 25 and also on January's billing date!

This morning we have news of some pre-season happenings in the world of suburbia—everything from travel to anniversary.



CHOSE candlelight service

The wedding of Miss Barbara Ann Walden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey E. Walden, and John C. Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Jensen, all of Goehner, took place Thursday evening, Dec. 2, at the United Church of Christ in Goehner. The candlelight service was solemnized by the Rev. Gary Nienkamp.

Wearing sheaths of blue satin with white lace overbodices were Miss Pat Schaefer of Lincoln, as the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Kathy Jensen and Miss Arlene Jensen, Goehner, sisters of the bridegroom.

Neil Cole of Lincoln, served Mr. Jensen as best man, and seating the guests were Raymond Walden and Wesley Walden of Goehner, brothers of the bride.

The bride's gown was fashioned of traditional white satin. Appliques of jeweled Alencon lace patterned the front of the long-sleeved bodice, which was designed with a rounding neckline, and the lace motif trimmed the bell skirt and the full overskirt which extended into a chapel train. Her tiered veil of illusion was held by a circlet of pearlized blossoms, and she carried a crescent of red roses.

Mr. Jensen and his bride will make their home at 3810 L, in Lincoln. The bridegroom is a student at the University of Nebraska and a member of Acacia.

COED is a bride-elect

This morning Mr. and Mrs. Archie E. Kreychik of Niobrara make announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Janice, to Kenneth R. Liska, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex A. Liska, also of Niobrara.

A summer wedding is planned.

Miss Kreycik will be graduated from the University of Nebraska Teachers' College in January.

Mr. Liska is a freshman in the college of veterinary medicine at Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa.

EASTBOROUGH

Putting on their traveling shoes for a mild workout last weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Knopp. The Knopps motored to Omaha to be the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morgan.

NORTHEAST HEIGHTS

It was time for a celebration at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kelley of 6025 Walker Ave. Although their 12th anniversary was Sunday, December 5, the Kelleys had a pre-celebration on Saturday for friends and neighbors. Their guest list for the evening card party included Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Merton Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Petty, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Case, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Trissell, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Poskochil, and Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Watermeier of Lincoln. From the Wahoo region came Mr. and Mrs. Don Texil.

WEDGEWOOD MANOR

In the moving action this morning, we find that Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rutherford have moved from their 156 Lakewood home. Their new mailing address is 4610 Van Dorn.

Also moving away from the Wedgewood Manor are Mr. and Mrs. Flay Goodwin of 7151 So. Wedgewood. The Goodwins are making their new home at 1801 W. Crawford Ave. in Connellsville, Pa.

LINCOLN HEIGHTS

In the moving record this morning, we also find that Mr. and Mrs. Don Whitney also have changed their Lincoln address. Former residents of 1230 Elba, the Whitney family is now residing at 1331 Cottonwood.

Home for a few days recently were two young ladies in the Lincoln Heights area. Miss Gretchen Fuenning, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. I. Fuenning, spent time with her family, away from her studies at the Colorado Women's College in Denver. Also on a brief vacation from nurses training in Kansas City, Mo. was Miss Vicki Underhill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Underhill. We hear that both travelers will be home again—for two weeks this time—at Christmas.

HOLLINGSWORTH HEIGHTS

Recent travelers in the Hollingsworth Heights area were Dr. and Mrs. James McCabe and their three sons who drove to Indianola, Iowa, for a visit with friends. The McCabe family were guests of Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Wood and their three sons from Friday until Sunday. But before heading for Indianola and the home of Dr. and Mrs. Wood, the five McCabes stopped first in Omaha to view the cinerama showing of "The Magnificant Men in the Flying Machine."

Bridal Courtesies

Prenuptial courtesies are continuing for Miss Mary Margaret Holtmeier in the final weeks preceding her marriage to Eugene Bjorklun of Minden, which will be an event of Saturday, Dec. 18.

The former University of Nebraska coed was honored at a coffee and bathroom shower last Saturday morning when Mrs. James Anderson and her daughter, Mrs. Judd Wagner, Omaha, entertained at the home of Mrs. Anderson.

Friday evening, Mrs. O. S. Troester was hostess at her home in courtesy to Miss Holtmeier.

Also included among recent parties honoring the soon-to-be bride was the dessert supper given by Mrs. A. G. Dreesen at her home.

For the ceremony, which will be solemnized at Calvary Lutheran Church, Miss Holtmeier has named Mrs. Judd Wagner of Omaha, as her matron of honor.

John Bjorklun of Kearney, will serve his brother as best man, and seating the guests will be William Tallichet and James Schlegelmilch.

Philburn of Unadilla, became the bride of Steven James Lehr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Lehr. The lines of the service were read by Dr. Carl M. Davidson, and Mrs. Marjorie Smith, organist, played the wedding music. Mrs. Smith also accompanied Mrs. Gale TeSelle, the vocal soloist.

Wearing crystalet frocks in shades of pink and rose fashioned in the daytime length were Mrs. Thomas L. Pyron, who was the matron of honor; Miss Leona Bickford, the maid of honor; and the bridesmatron, Mrs. Gary Jurgens.

Gary Jurgens served Mr. Lehr as best man, and seating the guests were Paul Philburn, Unadilla; Jerry Jones, John Welch and Walter Blakesley.

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Dble	Redble
1 NT	Dble	2 ♣	Dble
Pass	Pass	2 ♦	Dble

Opening lead — ace of hearts.

This unusual hand occurred in the match between Argentina and the United States in 1959. It is certainly not typical of how bridge is generally played in world competition, but perhaps the deal can serve in a negative way to illustrate how the game should not be played.

When the United States held the North-South cards, the bidding went as shown. West's double of a spade was rather light, as well as dangerous, and eventually he had to pay a penalty for his foily. After some twisting and turning, he wound up at two diamonds doubled. This contract went down three — 800 points.

Strangely enough, the bidding started the same way when Argentina held the North-South cards at the other table. However, the bidding then took an unexpected turn and the Argentines wound up playing the hand at six spades! The bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Dble	Redble
2 ♣	Pass	Pass	Dble
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♦
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	5 ♣
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	6 ♠

Why South refused to stand for the double of two clubs is hard to explain, and why, in doing so, he bid three spades instead of two is also mysterious. In high cards South's hand was a minimum opening bid, and in distribution it was certainly not unusual enough to warrant a jump rebid.

South went down three and Argentina suffered a net loss of 1,100 points on the deal. Both Wests displayed inferior judgment in contesting South's spade bid after East had passed, but the U.S. West was lucky enough to get off the hook.

Both Wests could well have reasoned that if East had moderate or great spade length, it was dangerous to intervene, while if East was short in spades, it was futile to contend against the highest ranking suit opposite a passed partner.

ABBY
etiquette doesn't cover problem
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Just what is the difference between "flirting" and being friendly with a man? I have been accused of flirting when I have only meant to be "nice" to a fellow. I am single and people tell me I'm the type they feel like they've known all their lives only a few minutes after meeting me. Men DO ask me out as soon as they meet me, but I have trouble with them after that. They try to take liberties with me and I'm not that kind of girl. How can I be friendly enough to capture a man's interest, without giving him the idea that anything goes?

JUST FRIENDLY

DEAR FRIENDLY: "Flirting" constitutes encouragement above and beyond the platonic plateau. The girl who is constantly being misunderstood is a little TOO friendly. Don't be a tease. The man who mistakes the dating call for the mating call needs his hearing tested. Start by saying "NO" very clearly.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was selected to be one of a few for a big honor in her school. She had a lot of competition but, Abby, she won it fairly and squarely. We later heard through the grapevine that the reason our daughter won was because we were friendly with some of the people who had a big say in picking the winner. I swear on a stack of Bibles that we never once mentioned our daughter or anything about that "honor" to these people. This sure does take the joy out of it for us. How can we let folks know that she won with no help from anybody?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Don't waste your time or energy. Your friends don't need to be assured and your enemies wouldn't believe the truth anyway. Credit it to the sour grapevine and forget it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "AWAITING YOUR REPLY IN MANKATO, MINNESOTA: I do not believe that a "shotgun" marriage under the circumstances you described has much of a chance to succeed and, therefore, I would not recommend it. As for marrying to give a child "a name," good names (and bad ones) are earned by those who bear them.

The season of winter storms is upon us. If it isn't raining rain, it isn't violets either, Violet.

Rain these days is full of strontium-90.

This unlucky stuff falls out of atom bombs. And though we've all agreed not to shoot any more of them, there's plenty of this strontium-90 still floating around.

The humble tortilla is a kind of flat corn pancake. The Mexicans were eating them when Cortez arrived.

In Mexico they are made by colorful Indian ladies in colorful Mexican villages. In America you can buy them in packages in colorful supermarkets. Ole!

The Mexican ladies grind the corn in Aztec stone grinders.

They pat the dough flat like a pancake. They cook it on a piece of tin on top of a charcoal stove. It's not bad—it's not sachertorte mit der schlag either.

But people who grow up eating tortillas are fond of them.

At the elegant Senor Pico's restaurant in San Francisco, they've got a public tortilla maker in the middle of the dining room. Turning out thousands a day. Probably getting more attention than Alcatraz through the front window.

The important point is what they do against strontium-90. (Don't be impatient, please. Doctor will tell you when to get dressed.)

Says the University of Mexico: "The calcium content of a tortilla diet apparently has the effect of preventing strontium-90 from entering the bone tissue."

How did they find out? Well, they lined up a lot of tortilla-filled Mexicans in front of a Geiger counter. And they lined up a bunch of gringos like you and me—filled only with supermarket bread.

When they ran the Geiger counter along the gringos, it sounded like running a stick along a picket fence. Click, click, click.

But when they ran it over the tortilla-stuffed Mexicans, not a whisper.

It did not take scientists long to figure this out. Calcium and strontium-90 both head for the bones. "Oh, the foot bone's connected with the shinbone, the shinbone's connected with the leg bone," as the song goes.

The question being which connects with the bones first—calcium or the old strontium-90?

They get on their marks. Get set! They're ricing! (As we say in Austrylia.)

If the calcium gets there first, you win.

If strontium-90 gets there first—Dear John, that's all she wrote.

☆ ☆ ☆

Well, you cannot tell—for awhile—who won in the Fallout Sweepstakes. I've been rained on for many a nuclear year. On the other hand, I've eaten a lot of tortillas from time to time. Look at it that way.

My family is mad for Mexican food. The moppets adore tortillas.

While other people could light up a juke box with accumulated fallout, I imagine these kids are full of calcium.

Somewhere I read you can get too much of that, too. But you can't win them all. At all, at all.

2 Heroic Pilots Praised

North Salem, N.Y. (AP)—Shaken survivors and seasoned crash investigators credited two hero pilots Sunday for the miraculously low death toll of four in a collision of two airliners high over New York's suburbs.

One pilot lost his life as he fought his unflyable four-engined Constellation, with 54 persons aboard, to a firey pancake crash against a rural hillside here, near the Connecticut state line 50 miles from Manhattan, Saturday.

The other pilot guided his crippled Boeing 707 jetliner, with 58 persons aboard, to an emergency landing at Kennedy Airport with 30 feet of left wingtip missing.

All the dead and 32 still hospitalized, four of them in critical condition, were aboard Capt. Charles J. White's Eastern Airlines shuttle flight from Boston to Newark, N.J.

'Wonderful Job'

Standing in a soft snowfall beside the charred wreckage, Oscar Bakke, regional director of the Federal Aviation Agency, remarked:

"All I can say is it is fantastic that people walked away. The pilot must have done a wonderful job."

The last time two commercial aircraft collided over the metropolitan area—on Dec. 16, 1960, in aviation's worst disaster—134 persons on the planes or on the ground in Brooklyn and Staten Island were killed.

The only injured person aboard Capt. Thomas H. Carroll's Trans World Airlines nonstop jet flight from San Francisco to New York was a stewardess whose nose was bloodied when she was slammed to the floor by the collision two miles up in a dusky sky.

"I think we certainly can give the captain credit for a magnificent job of landing the plane with that much wing gone," said another federal investigator, George A. Van Epps of the Civil Aeronautics Bureau. "It was excellent pilotage."

Passengers echoed these sentiments.

"Thank God, our pilots were expert and brought it safely in," said New York Schools Supt. Bernard E. Donovan, on the TWA plane. "I can tell you everybody in that plane applauded as we landed."

2,200 Flights A Day

The planes came together with a combined speed of perhaps 1,000 miles an hour on crossing paths of crowded metropolitan air lines which handle 2,200 flights a day.

Eastern Airlines Sunday night issued a statement in New York praising the "superb airmanship" of the pilot, Capt. White, and said he apparently died while helping evacuate passengers from the firey wreckage.

Arthur D. Lewis, Eastern's senior vice president and general manager, said that after the collision White "found he could no longer control his aircraft through normal systems" and attempted the emergency landing.

"That he was able to bring his aircraft into the small field under twilight visibility conditions is little short of miraculous," the statement asserted. "After the impact, Capt. White went aft to insure the safe evacuation of his passengers and this performance of duty apparently cost him his life."

Federal investigators examined wreckage and survivors seeking to learn how it could happen.

Crews Lauded

CAB investigator William L. Lamb said Sunday it was "far too early" to make any statement of the cause, but expressed "great admiration for both of the crews."

The transcontinental flight was supposed to be at 11,000 feet and the shuttle flight at 10,000.

'Down Under' Countries Approach New Year's Economics Cautiously

Sydney, Australia (AP)—Australia and New Zealand bought more than they sold in 1965, and this is one reason why they move into 1966 with a feeling of caution about business prospects.

And in Australia the grave drought over much of the eastern part of the continent is an added worry. Some say it will cost the country at least 100 million Australian pounds ($224 million).

Wheat suffered with the crop down perhaps 200 million bushels from 1964. On the cattle ranches and dairy farms, breeding cows were sent to the slaughterhouse in thousands before they died of starvation.

Sheep died of starvation, and wool clip was smaller.

Despite new export business such as the sale of 18,000 automobiles a year, Australia still earns most of its overseas currency from produce of the land.

In New Zealand there is no drought and the position is brighter. That country expects higher export income in 1966; chiefly from wool and wheat.

Australia had reserves of $1.56 billion on June 30.

Both countries have virtually full employment despite a continuous flow of migrants arriving from Britain and Europe.

The New Zealand figures showed 547 people registered as unemployed in a work force of 900,000 by latest count. At the same time there were 7,652 job vacancies.

In Australia the latest figgures showed 35,641 registered unemployed and 52,866 job vacancies listed in government employment agencies.

Fumes Threat Passes

Camden, Ark. (AP)—The threat of fumes from deadly chemicals caused the evacuation of more than 1,000 persons from their homes for nearly 15 hours Sunday after a train derailment here.

No injuries were reported.

Authorities evacuated a wide area of the city after one of the tank cars exploded early Sunday and officials warned that there might be more blasts.

A team of chemical experts arrived here from Louisiana shortly after noon, surveyed the scene and told firemen they could resume the battle against the flames which they had abandoned just before the explosion.

Shortly before dark the flames were controlled and the all-clear sounded.

The evacuees, who had fled to a bus station, camped in a park, gone to churches and stayed in private homes began returning to their residences.

While firemen battled the tank car fire, U.S. Forest Service personnel fought flames in a section of woods which caught fire from the derailment blaze.

Authorities had set up lines 1,100 yards from the derailment scene, blocking all comers. They set up a command post and watched for developments until the chemical experts arrived.

Bernard C. Weaver of the Bureau of Explosives of the American Railroad Association at New Orleans, went with two Ethyl Corp. men to the scene of the fire, wearing gas masks.

"There is a strong smoke odor but nothing else there," Weaver said on returning. He told firemen they could move back in.

Weaver was accompanied here by D.K. Brown and Earl Carraway of Baton Rouge, La. They donned gas masks and went from a command post about 600 yards away to the explosion site. The actual threat was from the chemicals in two cars shipped by the Ethyl Corp.

Billowing clouds of bluish-purple smoke wafted into Camden, a south Arkansas city of 15,800, but its residents, including the evacuees, could be seen making their way to churches in mid-morning.

An explosion shot a column of flame about 300 feet in the air.

The blast came moments after Fire Chief Jake Mahan, at the request of railroad officials, withdrew his men after a two-hour fight against the fire.

"It felt like the earth was quivering," said Mrs. Allie Cunningham at the downtown Camden Hotel, about four miles from the wreckage. "People must have thought it was a bomb."

The blast rattled windows in homes six miles away, was felt four miles away, and the column of fire was seen by persons three miles away.

Cause of the derailment has not been determined.

The derailed cars crashed together in huge piles. Fire broke out in one heap of cars, spread to eight and endangered 11 others.

As the fire raged higher, Police Chief G. B. Cole, also at the urging of railroad officials, launched the evacuation. Police and volunteers roamed through streets with sirens blaring and a public address system warning residents to leave the area. A 20 to 25-block area was left still and deserted, the sheriff said.

Reds' Moon Shot Back On Course

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet spaceship Luna-8 successfully passed a critical hurdle Sunday in its flight toward the moon and an attempt at history's first soft landing of instruments on the lunar surface.

The Soviet news agency Tass announced early Sunday that the course of the spaceship was corrected successfully and it is now on a trajectory close to the one Soviet scientists had calculated.

Luna-8 is at least the fourth attempt by the Soviets to perform the tricky maneuver of gently floating an instrument package down on the moon's surface — a feat which would put them a giant step ahead of the United States in preparing for manned exploration of earth's nearest space neighbor.

Ton-and-a-Half

During the earlier and unsuccessful soft landing attempts, Soviet scientists said the ton-and-a-half satellite was equipped with cameras that would roll out along with other scientific instruments to transmit pictures and data on radiation, temperature, texture and other essential facts about the moon's surface and its suitability for earth visitors. The instruments are designed to study six-tenths of a square mile of the moon's surface.

Luna-8 was launched on its 225,000-mile journey Friday night, less than 24 hours before the United States launched the first part of its manned space doubleheader during which two U.S. Gemini spaceships will attempt to rendezvous while in orbit—another critical technique which must be perfected before men can reach the moon.

Luna-8 is expected to reach the moon's surface at 12:50 a.m. Tuesday (3:50 p.m. CST Monday) in "the area of the Ocean of Storm," Tass said Sunday.

Tass said successful completion of the mid-course correction in the trajectory would "insure a meeting with the moon in the pre-set region." The announcement said the spacecraft's radio and other instruments were operating normally.

The agency said "The system of astro-orientation and the correcting engine facilities were working during the correcting period in conformity with the calculated regime."

Luna-6

Luna-6, launched May 9, veered off course and missed the moon altogether because its correction apparatus failed to function properly.

The success of the correction partly determines whether the spaceship will make a soft landing, with all its instruments intact, or a "hard" landing which would destroy the rocket and its precious package.

Luna-7 crashed only 24 seconds behind schedule and hard enough to destroy the spaceship. Luna-5 crash-landed five minutes too soon.

Prof. Vsevolod Troitsky, writing Sunday in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, said these experiments "usher in a new stage in studying the moon and planets with the help of interplanetary ships."

Both Soviet and American scientists have warned repeatedly that a soft landing of a rocket on the moon is one of the most difficult space problems of all.

Dramatic Economic Rise Seen

New York (AP)—The National Industrial Conference Board said Sunday that the American economy is embarking on a dramatic course of growth that can be expected to carry output, jobs, profits and incomes to unprecedented levels by 1975.

The conclusions were the result of a study undertaken by the board, a nonprofit research organization, with financial assistance from the New York Stock Exchange.

Barring unforeseen problems, the study said, the potentials include:

—A $1 trillion gross national product—total of all goods and services.

—A swift escalation of the country's standard of living.

—A high-investment, high-saving economy, relatively free of inflation.

—A far-reaching job boom, especially in positions requiring advanced education and technical training.

"Only the same careful and deliberate evolution of our economic institutions that has characterized our past" is needed to fulfill the rapid growth projected in the study, said Albert T. Sommers, director of economic research for the board.

The study pointed out that encounters with the short-term business cycle are not ruled out, and that achievement of the projected growth depends upon solutions to international financial problems that will accommodate much larger exports, imports and capital slows than exist today.

Major factors spurring the optimism were given as the economy's robust performance in the 1960's, the significant improvement of both profits and the investment climate, the continuous creation of new technology through research and development, and intense international pressure on the economy for improved efficiency.

Somers said:

"The bumper dimensions of the 1975 potential arise largely because the American economy of 1965 is on the threshold of a great wave of growth in its human resources, unequalled since the days of heavy immigration to America many decades ago. The great challenge of the next decade is to create jobs to engage fully this surging tide of manpower."

While the nation does not face a population explosion, the study said, it does face a boom in the labor force of nearly unprecedented scope. By 1975 the labor force is expected to climb to 93 million, over 20% more than last year.

Civilian employment is expected to hit 86 million in 10 years, up from about 70 million last year.

Reaching the $1 trillion mark in output would mean an annual growth rate of 4.35% over the next decade, significantly higher than the country's long-term 3% pace and higher even than the 3.7% postwar figure.

Productivity is expected to rise a healthy 2.85% over the next 10 years. This would match the over-all postwar rate but fall short of the hefty gain posted thus far in the 1960s.

A swift increase in personal income was projected with this figure reaching $895 billion by 1975. A vigorous jump in personal savings to $49 billion, double the 1963 volume, is expected.

Corporate profits are expected to rise much faster than they did during the 1950s. The study said that by 1975 before-tax profits would reach $118 billion and after-tax earnings $71 billion.

VC Say Further Raids Set

Tokyo (AP) — The Viet Cong claimed Sunday it killed or wounded more than 200 U.S. jet pilots in Saturday's predawn raid on the Metropole Hotel in Saigon and warned of "punishing new blows" it has scheduled to hit the South Vietnamese capital in the days to come.

A communique broadcast by Hanoi Radio urged South Vietnamese to keep away from "places frequented by the U.S. aggressors and their cruel agents" to avoid the danger.

U.S. figures show one American, one New Zealander and six Vietnamese were killed in the machine gun and bomb attack on the Metropole, an enlisted man's barracks near the Saigon central market and railway station. The Red communique claimed it was "exclusively reserved for U.S. jet pilots."

The warning tended to confirm predictions by U.S. security officials that the Metropole raid would be only the first of many intended to dramatize the fifth anniversary of the National Liberation Front — political arm of the Viet Cong. This falls on Dec. 20.

'Splendid Exploit'

The Viet Cong communique called the raid a "splendid exploit to mark the fifth anniversary" and also "a stunning blow at the U.S. aggressors to avenge our people in both the south and the north massacred by U.S. aircraft."

The Red insistence that its bomb squad hit jet pilots and their billet seemed to indicate that American air attacks had hurt morale to the point where the Viet Cong and its North Vietnamese allies needed to boost it even if only with easily disprovable propaganda.

Informed sources reported Saturday that four regular North Vietnamese regiments have taken up positions roughly 60 miles north of Saigon but these were not mentioned in the threat of forthcoming action.

Demonstration

Instead, the communique mentioned only an unidentified Viet Cong commander in the Saigon area. It said:

"It (the Metropole raid) was a demonstration of the great capacities of the liberation front and the command of the South Viet Nam liberation forces in the Saigon-Gia Dinh area wishes to remind the people of all classes that in the days to come the liberation forces will continue to deal other punishing blows at the U.S. aggressors and their cruel agents.

"The command . . . calls on the people to stay away from the places frequented by the U.S. aggressors and their cruel agents."

The Viet Cong said the raid was further proof, following previous attacks on such installations as the Vietnamese national police headquarters and the U.S. embassy, that "no matter where they may hide themselves and however solid their strongholds may be, the U.S. aggressors and their henchmen cannot avoid annihilation" . . . even "in their biggest dens in Saigon."

—WESTERN TITLE HOPE ALIVE—

Packers Upend Vikings, 24-19

Green Bay, Wis. (AP) — Veteran Bill Anderson made a brilliant catch of a Zeke Bratkowski pass and danced down the sidelines for the decisive touchdown Sunday as the Green Bay Packers kept their title hope alive with a 24-19 National Football League victory over the slumping Minnesota Vikings.

The game ended in an uproar as two near Viking touchdowns were disallowed by the officials.

The Packers' victory kept them on the heels of the Baltimore Colts in the Western Conference race. The Colts, who lost to Chicago, had the Packers by one-half game.

Anderson, hit as he grabbed the pass on about the Minnesota 20, fought free from a defender. Then treading near the sidelines he broke for the end zone. The play covered 27 yards and pulled the Packers back from a 19-14 deficit created by Fred Cox's fourth field goal of the game.

The field goal, which was partially blocked and actually brushed the crossbar, was crucial. The Vikings drove back to within field goal range with time running out but had to go for the touchdown.

Quarterback Fran Tarkenton drove the Vikings from their own 20 to the Packer 36 in a race against the clock.

Tarkenton then fired a strike to Tom Hall in the end zone, but offensive interference was called against him on the play.

Moments later Tarkenton threw another pass, this one to Jim Phillips on the edge of the end zone.

The pass was ruled both incomplete and out of bounds. The Vikings raged about the referee and Phillips refused to surrender the ball. It was the end of the Vikings' counter attack.

Cox scored on boots of 25, 36, 53 and 23 yards, but it was a field goal he missed from 59 yards out late in the second period that brought the Packers to life.

The ball fell short and Willie Wood caught it on his own six and raced 73 yards to the Vikings 21.

Baltimore Loses Unitas For Rest Of Grid Season

. . . 13-0 LOSS SHAVES WESTERN LEAD

Baltimore, Md. (AP)—A 61-yard touchdown run by Gayle Sayers and fierce defense led by Dick Butkus carried the growling Chicago Bears to a 13-0 victory Sunday over the Baltimore Colts, who lost their quarterback John Unitas and had their Western Conference lead shaved to half a game.

The Green Bay Packers, 24-19 winners over Minnesota, come into Baltimore next Sunday for a probable showdown in the National Football League conference title race.

Chicago, winner of eight of its last nine games, also retained an outside chance, trailing Green Bay by 1½ games with two to play.

Unitas suffered torn ligaments in his right knee near the end of the first half and will be out the rest of the season.

The last time the Colts were shut out in a regular game also was by the Bears, 57-0, in 1962. They also were blanked 27-0 in losing the championship playoff last year to the Cleveland Browns.

The touchdown run by Sayers in the first quarter was his 15th of the season, and added one to his league record for a rookie. It atoned for his fumble on the goal line a few minutes earlier, which was recovered by the Colts.

While the Bears dominated the game, fumbles and penalties prevented them from crossing the goal again. They settled for a pair of field goals by Roger LeClerc while the defense kept the Colts from getting inside the 20.

In a wild and wooly second quarter, Chicago recovered two fumbles, stole the ball another time and intercepted a pass.

Bad blood between the teams, a hangover from Baltimore's 26-21 victory earlier this season, boiled over into two fights among the players in the second quarter. Alex Hawkins of the Colts and Charlie Bivins of the Bears were ejected after they squared off.

The hard hitting of the contest was evidenced in 12 fumbles by the two teams. The Bears also drew a total of 15 penalties.

Browns' Rally Halts Skins, 24-16

. . . JIM BROWN TIES NFL SCORING RECORD

Cleveland, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Browns came from behind in the fourth quarter, with Frank Ryan throwing a touchdown pass and Jim Brown cracking four yards for another, to defeat the Washington Redskins 24-16 Sunday in a National Football League game.

Brown's touchdown was his 20th this season, tying the NFL record set last year by Lenny Moore of the Baltimore Colts.

An interception and fumble set up Cleveland's fourth-period scores. Linebacker Vince Costello picked off a pass by Sonny Jurgensen, setting up Ryan's 14-yard TD toss to Tom Hutchinson.

On the next series, defensive ends Paul Wiggin and Bill Glass slammed Jurgensen, shaking the ball loose. Jim Houston picked it up on the 18, and Brown slammed over from the four.

The Redskins were shutout in the second half but led 16-10 going into the final quarter. Charley Taylor slanted two-yards in the first period after Carl Kammerer recovered a fumble on the Browns' 15. Jurgensen fired a six-yard touchdown to Pat Richter in the second quarter, and Bob Jencks added a 20-yard field goal. The 10 points came within 57 seconds.

The Browns had taken a 7-6 lead in the second quarter with Ryan flipping seven yards to Gary Collins, who picked the ball off his shoetops while slanting across the end zone.

Lou Groza booted a 42-yard field goal in the third quarter. The Browns had moved to the five-yard line, but Ryan was thrown for 10 yards by Fred Williams and a holding penalty moved it back to the 35.

John Sample intercepted one of Ryan's passes in the fourth quarter when the Browns had only a one-point lead, but Houston's recovery gave Cleveland a second chance.

Jurgensen's pass to Richter climaxed an 85-yard drive that took 17 plays. The touchdown came with 57 seconds left in the first half. Two plays later Sam Huff intercepted Ryan's pass intended for Walter Roberts on the Browns' 44 and returned 10 yards. With 34 second left, Jurgensen hit Bobby Mitchell at the three, but Wiggin tossed Jurgensen for a 10-yar loss and Jencks booted his 20-yarder.

The Browns were driving for a touchdown in the first quarter, with Brown picking up 10 yards a crack. Paul Krause leaped at the goal line to intercept Ryan's pass to Brown in the end zone.

Baltimore Quarterback Undergoes Operation

Baltimore, Md. (AP)—Quarterback John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts was operated on Sunday night for torn right knee ligaments and a spokesman said it was "not outside the realm of possibility, but most unlikely" he could play if they make the National Football League Championship game Jan. 2.

Dr. E. J. McDonnell, who performed the operation several hours after Unitas was hurt against the Chicago Bears, informed the Colts that the crucial ligament had not been torn. Other torn ligaments were repaired and a cartilage removed.

Frederickson's 3 TDs Pace Giants

New York (AP)—Tucker Frederickson, the New York Giants No. 1 draft pick of last year, scored three touchdowns in his biggest day as a pro Sunday in a 35-10 victory over the fumbling Pittsburgh Steelers.

The rookie from Auburn ran 13 yards for one score, plunged three for the second and carried Pittsburgh's Jim Bradshaw into the end zone with him after taking a pass from Earl Morrall on a 19-yard TD play.

Morrall hit the veteran Del Shofner with a 33-yard scoring pass in the first period. But the Steelers came back with a 25-yard field goal by Mike Clark and a one yard plunge by Gary Ballman that gave them a 10-7 edge in the second period of the National Football League game.

Frederickson scored his three TDs in the second quarter, the first after the Giants had taken the ball on a series of Steeler misfortunes.

Bill Nelsen was thrown twice in a row trying to pass and then was penalized for throwing past the line of scrimmage. The Giants took the punt and moved 88 yards in eight plays for Frederickson's first score.

Jim Katcavage recovered Nelson's fumble on the Steelers' nine and Fredrickson went over on the second play.

A wild pass from center Ray Mansfield to punter Frank Lambert gave the Giants the ball on the Pittsburgh 19. Morrall struck again on a pass to Frederickson, who powered into the end zone after breaking from a tackle by Brady Keys.

The Steelers were guilty of seven fumbles and lost the ball four times. Two of Nelsen's passes were intercepted.

Frederickson carried 17 times for 81 yards, Steve Thurlow seven for 65 and Ernie Koy also seven for 65.

With only 31 seconds to go the Giants added a fifth touchdown on a 28-yard pass from Gary Wood to Homer Jones.

Carlton, Gogolak Lead Bills Over Houston Oilers, 29-18

Houston, Tex. (AP)—Wray Carlton ran for 148 yards and a touchdown on 11 carries and Pete Gogolak kicked a club record five field goals to lead the Buffalo Bills to a 29-18 American Football League victory over the Houston Oilers Sunday.

The Bills led 16-10 in the fourth quarter when Carlton swung around right end and raced 80 yards for a TD.

The Oilers also had a long bomb remaining. With only 3:55 left George Blanda dropped back into his own end zone and hit Dick Compton on a short pass that Compton turned into a 95-yard touchdown play.

Gogolak missed only two field goal attempts with his soccer kick. His longest scoring boot was 47 yards, tying his previous record in league play.

Blanda just missed a 52-yarder in the final period when the ball hit the crossbar.

Neither team showed much of a passing attack. Together they completed only 17 of 58 attempts. Houston was 12 for 34 and Buffalo was five for 24.

The game started off a ragged affair with Buffalo holding a rabbit's foot on a couple of freak pass plays and Houston borrowing it for three close first down measurements after fourth down attempts at midfield.

Gogolak, the league's leading scorer, put the Bills ahead 3-0 with a 12-yard field goal after Buffalo drove 61 yards in 11 plays.

Houston struck back with a 64-yard scoring drive in seven plays. Jack spikes swept right end for four yards and the touchdown.

Buffalo got its first big break on a pass play when Daryle Lamonica's receivers were covered, and he appeared to be trying to overshoot his deep man when Gary Cutsinger hit him.

The ball wobbled about 20 yards over center where Bo Roberson just that moment broke into the clear. Roberson gathered it in and completed a 74-yard scoring play.

The Bills kicked off and B. W. Cheeks fumbled on the 20. Six plays later Gogolak kicked another 12-yard field goal to make it 13-7.

Blanda booted a 41-yard field goal in the second quarter.

Late in the period, Don Trull hit Willie Frazier on a 36-yarder to the Buffalo 44. Frazier squirmed out of the arms of Hagood Clarke kept his feet with great balance to tack on another 16 yards. It was the first pass Houston had completed in their last nine attempts.

Trull tried to throw one away, but Butch Byrd made a driving interception right at the end line, fell down, sprang up, avoided two tackles in the end zone and raced 30 yards to the 20.

Griffith's Defense Of Crown Heads Boxing Program

By Associated Press

Emile Griffith's defense of his world welterweight championship against Manuel Gonzalez of Odessa, Tex., Friday night at Madison Square Garden heads the boxing program this week.

Gonzalez won a split decision from the champion in a bout at Houston last Jan. 26 but the champion is a firm 12-5 favorite to avenge this setback.

This is the 12th title match for Griffith, the Virgin Islander who now makes New York his home. He has won the title three times.

Oakland Keeps Western Hopes Alive

Oakland, Calif. (AP) — Tom Flores passed for two touchdowns Sunday as the Oakland Raiders kept alive their slim Western Division title chances by beating the Denver Broncos 24-13 in an American Football League game.

The Raiders' victory gave them a record of 7-4-1 compared to first place San Diego's 7-2-3. Each team has two games remaining, including their meeting Dec. 19 at San Diego.

Flores' touchdown tosses twice brought Oakland from behind. He put the Raiders up 7-3 in the second quarter with a three-yard flip to Art Powell.

With Denver leading 10-7 halfway through the second quarter, Flores combined with halfback Clem Daniels on a 60-yard touchdown pass and run.

Daniels broke Jim McMillin's tackle on the Bronco 43 and fled into the end zone, giving the Raiders a lead they never lost.

Denver quarterback Mickey Slaughter, out of action a month with torn muscles in his right shoulder, was activated for this game. But he lasted only six plays before suffering a separation of his left shoulder when tackled trying to pass.

Jacky Lee finished at quarterback for the Broncos and threw a 33-yard pass to Wendell Hayes in the second quarter that gave Denver a short-lived 10-7 lead.

Mike Mercer, who added the three Raider conversions, started the second half with a 33-yard field goal that put Oakland ahead 17-10.

A 22-yard Flores pass to Ken Herock and a 17-yard run by Daniels to the Denver two, set up Alan Miller's touchdown plunge in the third quarter that gave Oakland 24-10 lead.

Denver took a 3-0 lead on a first quarter field goal of 12 yards by Gary Kroner, who also connected for three points from ten yards out in the final period.

Hawks Romp, 113-99

. . . SILAS GRABS CAREER HIGH AT OMAHA

Omaha (AP)—St. Louis erupted for 40 points in the fourth quarter in posting a 113-99 victory over San Francisco in a National Basketball Association game Sunday night.

Richie Guerin poured in 30 points, the Hawk player-coach's season high as St. Louis trimmed the Warriors' secondplace margin in the western division to a half-game.

A scuffle broke out during the waning minutes with both Warrior guard Al Attles and Coach Alex Hannum ejected. Attles was thumbed out after both benches emptied during a flareup between the Hawks' Zelmo Beaty and San Francisco's Tom Meschery.

Hannum went out a few seconds later after his strong protest of an official's decision.

Rick Barry led the San Francisco attack with 30 points.

St. Louis managed a 48-41 halftime margin. The Hawks fashioned their biggest lead of the game, 110-94, after the Warriors' 6-foot-11 Nate Thurmond fouled out with 6:13 to play.

San Francisco overcame its seven-point halftime deficit to go into the fourth quarter in front, 74-73. The Hawks went ahead to stay at 80-79 on a free throw by Geurin, his fifth of 13 points in the final period.

Beaty pulled down 22 rebounds. Paul Silas, returning to the Omaha Civic Auditorium floor where he starred for Creighton University, took 20 shots off the boards, a pro career high for the second year St. Louis forward.

New York Jets Sign McAdams

San Diego, Calif. (AP) — The New York Jets of the American Football League announced Sunday the signing of Carl McAdams, the team's No. 3 draft choice.

McAdams, 21, a 6-3, 217-pound linebacker from the University of Oklahoma, was the first choice of the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

He was selected for The Associated Press All-America team and was defensive captain for Oklahoma.

Contract terms were not announced.

Cincinnati 108, Boston 99

Cincinnati, Ohio (AP) — Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucash led a fourth quarter surge as the Cincinnati Royals whipped Boston 108-99 Sunday night to move within one percentage point of the Eastern Division leading Celtics in the National Basketball Association.

With 5:53 left in the game, Robertson and Lucas combined for six straight points to give the Royals a 90-86 lead, which they never relinquished. With two minutes left, the Royals reeled off another six points to Boston's two.

The game see-sawed in the first three quarters, and the Royals held a 54-51 halftime lead.

Rams Bury Cards, 27-3

St. Louis, Mo. (AP)—The Los Angeles Rams spotted St. Louis a field goal and then roared past the Cardinals 27-3 Sunday on Roman Gabriel's two touchdown passes and a scoring run off a fake field goal in a National Football League game.

The victory was the second straight for the Rams, who still rest in last place in the Western Conference with a 3-9 record.

St. Louis, losing its sixth game in seven tries, fell out of a second place tie in the Eastern Division with a 5-7 mark.

Scrambling away from Cardinal defenders numerous times, Gabriel threw for 203 yards on 17 completions in 31 attempts.

The Cardinals scored first on Jim Bakken's 39-yard field goal, but that was all they could manage against the Rams' defense, which continually harassed quarterback Charley Johnson and held the Cardinals to 62 yards rushing and 104 passing.

Gabriel threw to Billy Truax and Dick Bass in the first half for a 17-3 halftime lead. Bruce Gossett added two field goals before the Rams iced it when Eddie Meador, holding for another field goal attempt from the 17, ran instead for a touchdown.

So effective was the Rams' defense, the Cardinals moved deep into Los Angeles territory only once when Johnson drove them to the seven in the second period, but he was hit trying to pass and fumbled. Tackle Merlin Olsen picked up the ball and rambled 59 yards to set up Gossett's field goal.

3 Big Eight Teams Remain Undefeated

By Associated Press Sports

The eighth-ranked Kansas Jayhawks turned the difficult trick of beating Texas Tech at Lubbock and stayed in the unbeaten ranks in Big Eight basketball, along with Colorado and Nebraska.

Walt Wesley, 6-foot-11 Kansas pivot, scored 34 points and Al Lopes added 18 as the Jayhawks won 74-70.

Oklahoma edged Indiana 83-82 at Norman for the only other Big Eight victory in a tough five-game Saturday night card. This gave the league a 7-7 record for the season against outside teams.

George Hawkins, 6-5 Oklahoma junior, had 19 points, and Don Sidle, 6-7 sophomore, scored 17 as the Sooners overcame a 45-50 halftime deficit and moved ahead to stay 55-53 on Jim Johnson's goal.

Iowa State was beaten 80-69 by Minnesota's Big Ten title favorites at Minneapolis despite Al Koch's 20 points. The seventh ranked Gophers had too much experience and power. Missouri's Ron Coleman hit 22 points but the Tigers lost an afternoon game at Arkansas, 75-62.

Kansas State, ranked No. 10 in the pre-season poll, was upset by Tulsa 70-63 in K-State's home opener, giving the Wildcats an 0-2 mark. Tulsa's Doug Robinson, 6-7 sophomore, pulled K-State's 7-1 Nick Pino away from the basket on defense much of the time.

Tulsa overcame a nine-point deficit with 53 per cent field shooting and a strong floor game led by little Eldridge Webb, another sophomore. Robinson controlled the boards. Pino had 15 points, five rebounds.

Two games are scheduled Monday night, starting the week's rugged 17-game schedule. New Mexico plays at Iowa State and Northwestern at Colorado. Northwestern beat Ohio and New Mexico whipped Baylor Saturday.

Meredith Carries Dallas To Victory Over Eagles

Philadelphia (AP) — Two blocked field goals and the passing of quarterback Don Meredith carried the Dallas Cowboys to a 21-19 National Football League victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday at Franklin Field.

Trailing 16-14 late in the third quarter, Dallas' Jethro Pugh broke through to block Sam Baker's 37-yard field goal attempt. The ball bounced all the way to the Eagles' 21, where the Cowboy's Mike Gaechter fell on it.

On first down, Meredith passed to Frank Clark who just made the corner of the end zone for a touchdown. Danny Villanueva kicked his third extra point for a 21-16 lead and the Cowboys fifth victory in 12 games, keeping them in contention for second place in the Eastern Conference.

Before the victory was clinched, however, Cornell Green had to bust through and block another field goal effort by Baker, who earlier tied a Philadelphia club record with four three pointers in a single game. The Eagles drove from their 35 to a first down at the 13, but bogged down and Baker misfired from the 20.

The Cowboys in winning their first game ever in Philadelphia had to recover from a 63-yard option run-pass TD on the Eagles' first play from scrimmage, from fullback Earl Groe to end Ray Poage. But with the exception of Baker's field goals, the Dallas defense stifled the Eagles offense the rest of the way.

. . . 49ERS' RALLY PUTS DETROIT BELOW .500

San Francisco (AP) — Throttled for three quarters, the San Francisco 49ers broke loose for two touchdowns in the last period to beat the Detroit Lions 17-14 in a National Football League game Sunday.

Quarterback John Brodie and end Dave Parks hooked up on a 34-yard pass for the first 49er touchdown, and rookie fullback Ken Willard powered one yard for the second with 4:43 left.

A crowd of 38,463 in chilly, 49-degree weather saw the Lions miss a final chance for a tie when Wayne Walker's field goal attempt from the 41 sailed wide with less than two minutes to play.

The fourth straight victory for the 49ers kept them in fourth place in the NFL's Western Conference with a 7-5 record. Detroit now is 5-6-1.

Tommy Davis booted a 14-yard field goal to put the 49ers into a 3-0 first quarter lead, but the Lions — led by halfback Amos Marsh — controlled the second period and scored two touchdowns.

Marsh, former Oregon State star, ran 20 for the first Detroit score three plays after linebacker Joe Schmidt intercepted a Brodie pass at the 30 and returned it eight yards.

The Lions next marched 64 yards in nine plays. The key plays were passes of 32 yards from Milt Plum to Gail Cogdill and 20 to Marsh.

Marsh then added a 14-yard gain from scrimmage to the San Francisco 1. Plum leaped over on the next play. Walker booted both conversions, and Detroit led 14-3 at halftime.

San Francisco controlled the third quarter but could not score as Davis missed a 13-yard field goal attempt. Kermit Alexander put the 49ers on their way when he intercepted a Plum pass at the San Francisco 22 and returned to the 37.

Houston was kicked in the chest after the ride, but was not hospitalized. The injury was not believed serious.

WHEN A COLD SPELL hits Jack Daniel's Hollow everybody would like to help make the charcoal that smooths out our Tennessee whiskey.

The ancient Charcoal Mellowing process we use to gentle our whiskey calls for seeping every drop down through 10 feet of hard maple charcoal. And it has to be rick-burned in the open air. We still make our own charcoal this way just as Mr. Jack did a century ago. The folks in the rickyard are especially glad we've never changed. After a sip of Jack Daniel's, we believe you'll be glad too.

Jury To Decide If Epton Aggrieved Man Or Anarchist

New York (AP)—Two hours before the outbreak of five days of rioting in Harlem and Brooklyn last year, undercover policemen secretly recorded a street corner speech of William Epton.

As played in Manhattan Supreme Court last week during the Negro's trial for criminal anarchy, the tape recording said:

"We will take our freedom. We will take it by any means necessary . . .

"And in the process of smashing the state, we are going to have to kill a lot of these cops, a lot of these judges, and we'll have to go up against their army. We'll organize our own militia and our own army."

And this, Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph Phillips told the jury of nine women and three men, was part of a radical scheme of the Progressive Labor Movement to foment a revolution, patterned after Communist Cuba's.

Aggrieved Man

But in the defense's opening statement, Mrs. Eleanor Jackson Piel contended the speech was but the voice of an aggrieved man, crying out against racial injustice, and when the rioting started, Epton was asleep at home.

Police seized Epton as he tried to lead a march in Harlem during that explosive July, 1964.

He was indicted under a state anarchy law passed in 1901 just after the assassination of President William McKinley in Buffalo, N.Y.

Back In '19

So far as could be learned, the last time the law was invoked here was in 1919 against Benjamin Gitlow, a founder of the U.S. Communist Party who later repudiated communism. Gitlow received a 5-10 year prison sentence, but won a pardon.

The indictment also charged Epton with inciting riot and two counts of conspiracy. The sum of the maximum sentences on the charges against him is 14 years imprisonment and $6,500 in fines.

The trial started Nov. 22, but the testimony has come only from the prosecution, mostly from Adolph W. Hart, a Negro recruited in Pittsburgh by the New York City police force and immediately assigned to infiltrate suspicious organizations.

Own Defense

Epton said he will testify in his own defense.

Epton, 33, married to a public school teacher and father of two children, appears nothing like the popular conception of an anarchist.

A 6-foot-2 former basketball player and Korean battle veteran, Epton relaxes in the courtroom and smiles frequently, but intently follows the testimony. He dresses neatly and conservatively.

Mrs. Piel described her client as an "outspoken Communist," but the U.S. Communist Party said it expelled him as an extremist. He is national vice-chairman of the Peking-Oriented Progressive Labor Movement and head of its Harlem branch.

Harrassment

At meetings of the movement, the undercover detective testified, Epton talked of sabotage, hit-and-run actions, harassment of police and National Guard and establishing a midwestern school to train small terrorist bands."

When the movement gains strength "then we will march on capital cities," Hart quote Epton as saying.

Hart said the movement seized upon the slaying July 16, 1964, of 15-year-old James Powell, a Negro, by an off-duty white police officer, Lt. Thomas Gilligan, to create unrest. A grand jury decided that Gilligan acted in self-defense against a knife attack.

20,000 Posters

The Progressive Labor Movement printed 20,000 "wanted for murder" posters bearing Gilligan's name, Hart said, and prepared an instruction leaflet for making molotov cocktails. While the rioting proceeded, movement members discussed ways of "suckering police officers into side streets and killing them," he added.

The detective testified that Epton sent members, posters and leaflets to the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn to extend the disorders, saying he wanted "to spread the police out because they were too concentrated in Harlem."

Before beginning the testimony, Justice Arthur Markewich excused the jury and read three telegrams he received protesting the trial.

One bore the name of Cheddi Jagan, Marxist ex-prime minister of British Guiana. The other two came from Canada.

National Economy Subject To Occasional Adjustments

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Prosperity is the norm, yet the annals of business show that occasionally business in the United States takes a step backwards before taking two steps forward.

Rukeyser

In boom periods, men who happen to be in seats of pwer tend to exaggerate their personal prowess. In the Gay Ninete Twenties, when two ex-newsboys expanded their operations into a big railway empire, Orvis P. Van Sweringen, the elder of the two, developed a reputation for financial wizadry. But after the turn following the October 24, 1929 panic, O. P. found that he had lost his touch. In despair, during tough days, he told an associate: "Time was when I could always dream up another million dollars."

Right now the soveneign authority is not in the banks nor in the private corporations nor the great insurance enterprises, but in the seat of government at Washington. The incumbent administration, intrigued by the theoretical concept of a managed economy, has tried its hand at directing steel, aluminum, copper and even perhaps premium grades of wheat prices.

When politicians put themselves in the direction in which winds of popular psychology are blowing, they seem all powerful. But once the psychology changes, the magic tends to be broken.

As one Wall Street researcher phrased it, "Keep in mind that when (fear) psychology is dominant, the government will have no effect. Crowds have no logic."

Adjustment Periods

If vicissitudes are ahead, how can the prudent prepare for survival? Unlike the speculator who goes out on a limb and stakes all on a hunch, the investor must look to other techniques. These include a balanced portfolio, with some fixed dollar commitments, such as high grade bonds, savings accounts, insurance and annuity contracts, on the one hand, and growth issues, including common stocks and real estate, on the other.

In addition, instead of guessing short term price fluctuations, some pursue the method of "dollar averaging," which consists of placing the same number of dollars periodically in precisely the same securities. "Dollar averaging" obviously makes sense only if restricted to securities with strong survival qualities. It, of course, doesn't make sense to average down on decaying enterprises. Another safeguard is to get professional investment counselling, either directly on a fee basis, or indirectly through acquiring financial packages of convenience, such as closed end investment companies or open end mutual funds, or common trust funds operated by fiduciary institutions (trust companies and banks), or shares of insurance companies which as a byproduct tend to operate as investment trusts, or by setting up a living trust.

The careful husbander of family savings doesn't chase over-bulled stocks on the way up to the last eighth. Some in times of transition prefer so-called protective issues, such as utilities, food and drug stocks, and shares of merchandising companies.

Important Approach

The important approach is to know where you want to go and what you hope to accomplish. One function of financial reserves inheres in ability to weather financial storms. From this purpose, cash or its equivalent (including short term evidences of indebtedness) is useful. This obvitase the necessity of being forced to liquidate inherently good stocks in markets of passing adversity.

Mass psychology and the impact of the tax laws tend to exaggerate price fluctuations in securities. For example the capital gains tax on older holdings discourages normal differences of judgment as to the proper time for profit taking. The penalty of a capital gains tax running up to 25% deters some selling on the theory that it is a voluntary method of shrinking one's capital.

The prudent, not wanting to be the last to anticipate change, use good times as an opportunity to put their financial house in order. Thus they tend to reduce debt and to increase their net worth. They also try to improve the quality and balance in their investment portolio. And they relate their life financial planning to their goals, setting aside some reserves for contingencies.

Such savings are not merely for a rainy day or for old age, but may be looked upon as capital to finance future business opportunities or to give a job holder a sense of independence and integrity, providing the resources to resign in protest when desirble, without subjecting his dependents to the breadlines.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Public Can Cut Trees At Halsey

Halsey (AP)—Public tree cutting at the Halsey National Forest has begun and will continue through Dec. 19, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

The cutting area is about seven miles south of the Bessey district headquarters. The cost per tree is $1 and the limit is five trees per person.

District Ranger Henry Bond says trees available include Ponderosa Pine, Jack Pine and Eastern Red Cedar. Most trees are 8 to 15 feet tall.

There are about 8,000 trees available in the area.

Project To Predict Insurrection Shot Down By Chilean Newspaper

Washington (AP)—It started as an idea in an obscure Pentagon office.

The idea: To study some five foreign countries to see if any patterns could be found that would help in predicting insurrection against incumbent governments and subsequent takeovers. Conversely to see if there was anything that might be done to foster constructive change in such countries to give them more order and stability.

It soon had a name: Project Camelot.

But before it even got past the planning stage, Proejct Camelot was shot down in flames.

Why? It came to light in Chile. An allegedly communist newspaper, El Siglo (The Century), played it big and in a light calculated to embarrass Uncle Sam.

Complained

It was an Army project, but the U.S. ambassador to Chile did not know about it. He complained to the State Department.

The Chileans didn't like the idea, either, and the result was concellation of Project Camelot.

The whole story—or as much as can be told now—is spread out in hitherto secret testimony published Sunday night by a House foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla.

Fascell's group last July and August questioned Lt. Gen. William W. Dick Jr., director of the Army Research and Development Department, officials of the private university group they contracted with to perform the study, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The committee complained of interdepartmental rivalry and Fascell said during the hearings:

"I am more than distressed, of course, that (the U.S. ambassador to Chile's) wires and comments were leaked to U.S. press . . . it seems clear that a steady stream of leaked material (from State Department sources) was directed at cancellation of Project Camelot"

Leak Likely

Rusk commented, "The indication that there was a leak is fairly strong."

Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., told Rusk, "I am amazed to find that there was this great lack of coordination here in our own country with regard to this project."

Rusk said, "To be very frank, sir, I think this was a horse that got out before we realized that somebody ought to be thinking about the barn door. I needn't kid the committee . . .

"I would say this could have been handled better . . . I was not sufficiently aware of it . . ."

But Dick testified that his State Department counterparts were repeatedly briefed on the development of Project Camelot.

The planning was contracted out of the Special Operations Research Office (SORO) of the American University in Washington.

Dr. Theodore Vallance, who was in charge of it for SORO, said that before it ever got around to selecting actual countries to be studied, a colleague who was going to Chile anyway offered to make some inquiries in the academic community there about how it would be received.

Favorable attitudes

Vallance said, "While there, he encountered, according to his later report, generally favorable attitudes toward the idea of this kind of research.

"He also, perhaps inevitably, managed to get his thoughts into the ears of some people who were skeptical and this led to a chain of communications which apparently got into the hands of people who were involved in the communist movement in Chile. This led to its appearing in the local newspapers. This then kicked up all the fuss."

Brother Saves Brother From Explosive End

Kansas City, Kan. (AP) — Patrolman Thomas Kane, during his off-duty hours, guards several houses that have been condemned to make way for a highway.

His brother, John Kane, has a contract to demolish one of the houses and planned to burn it down Monday.

Patrolman Kane, acting on impulse Saturday, inspected the house closely. He found 51 sticks of dynamite and a keg of blasting powder hidden in the place.

Demolition experts from Richards - Gebaur Air Force Base carefully removed the explosives.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How To Work It

to L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another in this example, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
